HULL AND EDEN LAUNCH PEACE FORMULA TALK

Conferences Start Coincident With FDR Nod to Senate Group's Proposal.

DEBATE DUE ON LATTER

Sponsors of Plan Prepare to Introduce Resolution In Senate Tuesday.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Anthony Eden and Cordell Hull, top diplomats of Great Britain and the United States, begin historic consultations today coincident with a senate move to assure post-war United Nations collaboration for the maintenance of everlasting peace.

Eden, the British foreign secretary, and Hull, the American secretary of state, planned frequent meetings this week in search of a basic understanding on war aims and peace purposes which might be extended later into a general pact for post-war security among all United Nations.

Simultaneously, four senators, encouraged by White House approval of their broad objectives, prepared to ask the senate to endorse their proposal for an immediate conference of United Nations representatives on a five-point program to win the war and set up an international police force to guard against future aggression.

Eden is not participating in the discussions of the plan for closer Allied cooperation which is being sponsored by the senate group, but the legislators' objectives are in line with what Eden and Hull are undertaking and the diplomats have been encouraged by this demonstration of support from the capitol.

The senate resolution may be ready for introduction tomorrow. It probably will touch off the greatest congressional debate on international relations since the League of Nations battle.

The senate plan was presented to President Roosevelt yesterday by its four authors—Sens. Lister Hill, D., Ala., Carl Hatch, D., N. M., Harold H. Burton, R., O., and Joseph H. Ball, R., Minn.

As presented to the president, the resolution called for the United States to take the initiative in forming a United Nations council "with specific and limited authority" to:

1. Assist in coordinating and

War Labor Board Permits Five-Cent Increase at Plymouth Plant.

Announcement was made today at Plymouth that the war labor board had approved a five-cent hourly increase for 300 employes of the Fate-Root-Heath company but disallowed a minimum wage of 60 cents hourly and a five per cent bonus for night work.

The board's refusal was based on "lack of evidence to establish that there are any unusual or unreasonable differences in wage rates which constitute a manifest injustice to workers."

Guayule Rubber Output To Be Six Tons Per Day.

AKRON—(U.P.)—William O'Neil, president of General Tire and Rubber company, announced that the first production of Guayule rubber on a commercial scale begins today at Salinas, Cal.

Nation-Wide Dim-out Urged To Save Electricity, Travel

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — A modified national "dim out" to save fuel and transportation is being advocated by the Office of Civilian Supply, it was learned today.

The agency reportedly is using as its chief argument the present waste of electrical energy. It is inconsistent, according to this argument, to burden transportation and fuel output by permitting free use of electricity to advertise commodities which are rationed.

The OCS reportedly also has taken the stand that it is equally futile to permit unrestricted use of electricity to advertise supplies which are inadequate and which are likely to be scarce for the duration.

The agency has prepared a program under which it claims 2,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of electricity would be saved yearly and about 1,000,000 kilowatt hours in evening peak loads. Under its program, OCS contends that coal or equivalent savings would exceed 1,000,000 tons a year and about 500,000,000 ton miles of freight annually would be saved.

OCS is understood to be advocating that prohibitions, with some exceptions, be imposed on all outdoor illuminating signs or signs using current for other purposes, all outdoor flood lights for advertising display or decorative purposes, all theater marquee lighting in excess of one watt per square foot of ceiling over the entrance and all shop window lighting in excess of 25 watts per linear foot of glass window paralled to the sidewalk.

The plan calls for street and highway lighting not to exceed two kilowatts, per 100 linear feet of thoroughfare.

In conjunction with this program, OCS is advocating a nation-wide campaign to eliminate waste in use of electrical energy. The campaign would be conducted jointly by the government and by utilities and would be directed at all consumers of electricity—industrial and homeowners.

There's Still One More Hitch In Tin Can Collections

As householders' complaints against tin can accumulations increase, it developed today that the city has a collection truck, authority to hire two men for a recently created salvage division—but no money appropriated with which to pay them.

Last week Street Commissioner Charles Hebel announced that his department has rebuilt a truck which can be used for can collection, making unnecessary a council appropriation of around $1,400 urged by Mayor W. J. Locke for purchase of vehicle.

Council in December created a salvage section of the garbage department, authorizing Superintendent Lester Linham to name two workers at $140 a month each. This wage set-up was main-

HITS RATIONING

Iowa Governor Scores Curb on Farm Machinery.

DES MOINES, Ia. — (AP) — Gov. B. B. Hickenlooper of Iowa today told a conference of cornbelt state governors that federal regulations on the rationing of farm machinery are "impractical to the point of foolishness."

In an address prepared for the one-day 12-state meeting, Hickenlooper said:

"There are several thousand combines in various manufacturing plants in the country that could have been available last fall and are needed now. But under the rationing program they were not released.

DES MOINES, Ia.—(AP)—Tenderloin steak and roast prime ribs of beef highlighted the menus of today's cornbelt state governors' conference on the farm production problem.

SCANT STOCK OF WHISKY ARRIVES

Week's Share for Mansfield Retail Store Amounts to 135 Bottles Daily.

Advices from managers of Mansfield's two state liquor stores today indicated that probably slightly more than 150 cases of whisky had arrived this morning from state warehouses to partially meet the wholesale and retail demands for the entire week.

Meanwhile, several night club permit holders said they would continue their practice of early closing hours nightly as a means of conserving their short stocks. It is reported that several local cafes closed entirely late Saturday after noon whiskies had been available from the North Main street wholesale depot all last week.

"We will be able to offer about 135 bottles daily," Frank C. Poling, manager of the South Park street retail store said today. "This will be under the quota speticiation fixed last week by Don A. Fisher,

Italians Claim Sinking Of Troop-Laden Allied Transport

(By Associated Press)

The Italian high command declared in a communique broadcast from Rome and recorded by the Associated Press today that the 23,500-ton liner Empress of Canada, laden with troops, had been sunk in the Atlantic by an Italian submarine.

There was no confirmation of this statement in Allied quarters.

The Empress of Canada, a twin-screw vessel of 21,517 tons, was a part of the Canadian Pacific Railway fleet. She was built at Glasgow in 1922.

From Berlin was broadcast a special communique of the German high command which credited Nazi U-boats with destruction of fourteen vessels totaling 92,000 tons in various parts of the Atlantic.

This claim also was without confirmation from Allied authorities.

With the five merchant ships officially announced last week the Associated Press tabulation of Allied and neutral nations cargo ships officially announced as sunk by the Axis in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor totaled 626.

Twenty-four seamen were reported killed, one missing and 296 rescued in the five sinkings.

LISBON —(UP)— Four Axis submarines attacking a convoy off Portugal were sunk last week by Allied warships, maritime circles said today.

Two of the U-boat commanders, one of whom was a former captain on the Hamburg-Brazil-Argentina line, were taken prisoner, it was reported.

Maritime circles said three Allied cargo ships in the convoy were damaged during the battle but succeeded in making port.

Income Tax Office Rushed As Deadline At Midnight Nears

Busy all day yesterday making out income tax returns mostly for war plant workers, Mansfield's internal revenue office continued with a deadline day rush of taxpayers today as the midnight zero hour drew near.

Collectors will remain on the job continuously until midnight.

The "come-and-get-me" attitude which appeared to have prevailed among war workers in some sections of Mansfield and several points in Ohio, appeared to be easing off.

Deputy Collector Albert Wentz in commenting on returns being filed in the past few days said that "there wasn't much evidence of a lagging attitude on the part of workers." He praised co-operation of Mansfielders during the final days of the tax period.

A steady stream of taxpayers passed through the tax office, second floor of the postoffice building between 10 a. m. and 5 p. m. yesterday.

Nation-wide figures are not so encouraging as Washington officials report that probably not more than one-fifth of the 40,000,000 persons who must file returns this year have done so. However, there has been a sharp rise in collections, indicating that the final collection may even exceed advance forecasts.

Those who fail to make returns and pay at least one-fourth of their tax by midnight face penalties. A five per cent increase on the total tax will be levied against delinquents for each 30-day period beyond tonight's deadline.

Accompanying payment of the record taxes has been a huge increase in the redemption of war bonds and stamps. Since Jan. 1, nearly $200,000,000 in bonds and $18,500,000 in stamps have been redeemed, it was announced in Washington.

'SPRING' STAYS

Weatherman Says Warm Sun To Shine a While Yet.

March's spring lamb is bleating lustily, if the sunny skies which have greeted Mansfielders since Friday continue as scheduled in Ohio's weather forecast for the remainder of today, tonight and Tuesday.

Scattered showers are promised to hold over-optimism in check but the observation is "continued warmer with fresh to strong winds this afternoon, tonight and Tuesday forenoon; scattered showers."

Householders baffled by point rationing and seeking solution in victory gardens have tired of the March lion which arrived prematurely last November and stayed all winter. A heavy pedestrian traffic Sunday after Saturday's increased shopping splurge indicated the general desire for an early spring.

Mansfield Mother Advised Son Among Missing In Africa

Another Mansfield soldier, Cpl. Richard T. Shadel, today was added to the city's casualties in the North African battle area.

SHADEL

Cpl. Shadel's mother, Mrs. Ada Shaw of 320 First avenue, was informed yesterday in a message from the War department that her son had been missing in action since Feb. 20.

Formerly employed at the Mansfield Westinghouse plant, Cpl. Shadel entered the armed forces in February, 1941. He had been overseas for several months.

He was the first Richland countian reported missing in the North African area since Lieut. Clark M. Garber of Butler was reported lost shortly after the first of the year.

M'Arthur Sees New Effort to Take Offensive

Enemy Concentrates Ships, Planes And Men In Former Dutch Islands; Opens Attack Against British Army In Burma To Beat Monsoons.

(By Associated Press)

The Japanese are massing ships, men and planes in a new threat to Australia, this time at their bases to the northwest of the south Pacific continent, Gen. Douglas MacArthur warned today.

At the same time the Japanese were disclosed in a New Delhi communique to have recovered somewhat the initiative they lost in Burma early this year when Marshal Sir Archibald P. Wavell's Indian forces launched their invasion toward Akyab. The communique said the Japanese, in a flare-up of fierce ground fighting, stabbed at the left flank of the British positions near Rathedaung, 25 miles north of Akyab, and forced a readjustment of the British lines.

In the wide theaters of the Pacific, however, American and Allied fliers continued to deliver devastating blows at a Japanese convoy off New Guinea, at Japanese bases in the Solomons and at the Aleutian base of Kiska.

MacArthur's communique today said air reconnaissance showed a "growing concentration of enemy transports and cargo ships" in the area of Amboina and Dobo, 600 and 500 miles northwest of Darwin, and that the Japanese were busily building numerous landing fields and strips at numerous spots in the northwestern area. The island of Amboina is the site of a former Dutch naval station in the East Indies.

The statement was the second in a MacArthur communique in less than a month warning that the Japanese are building up formidable forces in that area, either for offensive or defense.

MacArthur's airmen meanwhile were having more difficulty in disposing of a convoy of five merchant ships and three destroyers approaching Wewak, 280 miles northeast of Lae, New Guinea, than they did in wiping out a 22-ship convoy two weeks ago.

Four-motored bombers, flying 500 miles from their bases, had attacked in murky moonlight, however, and apparently had sunk two of the five merchant ships and severely hit another merchant ship and one of the three destroyers.

Delayed dispatches from the north Pacific disclosed that the assault by Liberator and Mitchell bombers on Kiska on March 10 was the heaviest yet made on that Japanese-held outpost in the Aleutions. A load of 53,500 pounds of bombs was dropped on buildings and thousands of rounds of cannon and machine-gun bullets poured into the defense posts.

Army officers hailed the attack as the beginning of a powerful summer offensive against Kiska.

The British said the Japanese had been reinforced in the Akyab area, but told of strong aerial attacks on the railroad yards at Mandalay.

American fliers from India hit a new peak in their aerial assault by a heavy bomber attack on the 2,200-foot Goteik railway viaduct between Mandalay and Lashio, beginning of the Burma road, where they scored direct hits on the tall steel supports. Two of the big bombers were lost, however, the first losses of this type in Burma since Nov. 29.

The Americans also smashed at the Moulmein docks and the Pazundaung bridge near Rangoon.

The Tokyo radio announced that Premier Hideki Tojo had return-

IN DOUBT: Germans Claim Kharkov, Russians Are Silent

(By Associated Press)

The possession of Kharkov, possible jumping-off place for a third great German summer offensive in a last desperate effort to crush Russia, was in doubt today as the Nazis announced its recapture and Russian dispatches indicated the Red army was waging a battle against great odds to hold that bastion of the Ukraine.

Not conceding the loss of the big steel city which they captured Feb. 16, or even admitting fighting within the city itself, the Russians nevertheless admitted their lines had been progressively forced back in the "Kharkov area" in the face of hundreds of tanks and overwhelmingly superior German numbers.

"It looks as though Kharkov is gone," military sources in London admitted, while the Germans in today's communique declared their offensive, spreading northward, had resulted in a bloody collapse of Russian counterattacks west of Belgorod.

"During the day and night Red army men of one unit repulsed incessant Hitlerite attacks," the mid-day communique from Moscow announced. It reported the destruction of 14 enemy tanks and 600 enemy soldiers in hand-to-hand fighting in one small sector.

Claiming a sort of vindication for Adolf Hitler's Waffen SS—combat units of the Nazi party's Elite guard—the German high command in a special communique last night announced the recapture of the city held by the Germans from October, 1941, until last February and gave the entire credit for the immediate operation to the SS and the German air force.

The communique said the cap-

PROGRESS: DeGaulle OK's Giraud Stand On French Policy

(By United Press)

LONDON—Gen. Charles De Gaulle today hailed Gen. Henri Honore Giraud's new pronouncement of policy as marking "great progress toward the doctrine of the Fighting French" and said he was ready to discuss ways and means of effecting full unity of all French elements.

Responding to Giraud's speech invoking the principles of the third French republic for North and West Africa, the Fighting French leader issued a statement expressing hope that the declarations would be "speedily translated into acts at Algiers, Casablanca and Dakar."

The declarations by the chieftains of the two French factions were believed to have brought measurably closer an understanding between them and full co-operation in the United Nations war effort.

"We note with satisfaction that these declarations mark in many respects great progress toward the doctrine of the Fighting French as defined and upheld since June, 1940, and again expressed in a memorandum of the national committee on Feb. 23," De Gaulle said with regard to Giraud's broadcast Sunday.

Yanks Fly Supplies 'Over the Hump' to China

No good land route exists at present for transportation of American supplies to the valiantly fighting Chinese army, but those supplies still are getting to Chungking—by air "over the hump," the towering Himalayas. Cargo is loaded aboard a transport somewhere in Assam at the southern end of the route, upper left. To cross the high peaks of the mountains, the transports must fly at altitudes of 18,000 feet or higher, as at upper right. Here crew members, like Pilot Lieut. Arthur S. Welling of Syracuse, N. Y., lower left, must use oxygen masks. Passengers, however, do not rate masks, so they must remain as inert as possible to avoid passing out. That's why the U. S. army major and colonel, lower right, are relaxing atop rifle cases.

MISS LAWRENCE WEDS PFC. DALE M'KINNEY

Ceremony Read By Candle Light By Rev. Glenn Sauder In the Presbyterian Church, Lexington; Miss Betty Dill Is Maid of Honor.

GOWNED in white marquisette, fashioned with a high neckline, tight bodice, full long sleeves and full skirt, Miss Elizabeth Marie Lawrence was wed to Pfc. Dale J. McKinney of Shelby in a candle light ceremony performed in the Lexington Presbyterian church Saturday night.

Rev. Glenn Sauder performed the open church ceremony at 7:30 p. m. before an altar banked with palms, peach gladiola and two seven branch candelabra.

The bride wore an elbow length veil of white illusion, held in place by a coronet of pearls. Her bouquet was of white roses and gardenias.

Miss Betty Dill of Lexington, who served as maid of honor, wore a frock of white marquisette with large blue flowers. In her hair she wore a coronet of blue ribbon. Miss Mary Baker of Ontario was Miss Lawrence's bride's maid. She wore a gown fashioned exactly as that of Miss Dill's with the exception of the flowers, which were pink. The gowns were fashioned with a long tight fitting bodice and full skirts. Miss Baker's coronet was of pink ribbon.

Mrs. Lawrence appeared in a teal blue ensemble with black accessories. Mrs. McKinney wore a navy blue frock with black accessores. Both wore corsages of gardenas.

Fred McKinney served as his brother's best man. Ushers were William Lawrence and Richard Foltz.

Nuptial music was furnished by Miss Ruth Derenberger at the organ, and Mrs. Mildred Carmean, vocalist. Their selections included "Oh, Promise Me," "Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life," "Sweetest Story Ever Told," and the traditional wedding marches.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception for 75 guests was held at the church. When refreshments were served buffet style, the table was decorated with the wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, and two low bowls of sweet peas.

When the couple left on their wedding trip, the new Mrs. McKinney was wearing a light blue tailored suit with tan accessories. Upon their return, Pfc. McKinney will leave for his station and Mrs. McKinney will continue living with her parents.

The former Miss Lawrence, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Lawrence, is a graduate of Lexington high school and a member of Beta Gamma sorority. She is employed at the Standard Oil district office in Mansfield.

Pfc. McKinney, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John McKinney of Shelby, is a graduate of Shelby high school, and before entering the armed forces was an employe of the Ohio Seamless Tube company in Shelby. He is stationed at present at Camp Hale, Colo.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were from Shelby, Mansfield, Ontario and Cleveland.

Gracie Allen's Home Alman(i)ac

Today I will take up the discussion of moths, a subject very near and dear to the hearts of all housewives. Especially dear. It cost us over four hundred dollars in moth food last year, including the silk lapels on the coat of George's lodge suit.

I am sure you have all had your troubles with these little creatures, but you should know our California moths. They are very social minded and frequently drop in for a bit of a chat or a bit of a hat as the case may be. After lunch, they like to sit down and listen to "Mary Martin, Girl Interne," on the radio.

Moths out here are great movie fans and they have their favorites too. Last week, I am told the moths had a secret Academy Award dinner and they elected as their favorite movie star Greer Garson's hat in "Mrs. Miniver" and the flannel baseball trousers worn by Gary Cooper in "Pride of the Yankees."

You can't tell me moths aren't patriotic either. When the OPA came out with that ruling on men's suits, they all went in and ate the cuffs off George's trousers even though it must have choked them. In fact the material on one of his plaid suits was so rich that one of the moths got the gout.

As it stands now we've got the moth problem only half solved. Last month, I put up a picture of Dorothy Lamour in the closet, and it was very easy then to find the male moths because of their heavy breathing. But the females are still left. George said only last night he detected a moth going through his clothes. Or did he say it was mother?

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, March 16

MOST propitious auguries are noted in this day's astrological forecast for those seeking favors, preferment, promotion or other tokens of appreciation from persons in place and power. It would be well to approach these with confidence. However, it might be amiss to stress the social, sentimental or romantic angle too far.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a favorable year, in which the fortunes and position may be put on a firm basis. It is a time to work for promotion, preferment, and other signs of cooperation from elders and employers.

A child born on this day, while having many sterling characteristics and talents may be disposed to capitalize social gifts to its injury.

Shower Fetes Mrs. E. G. Varga Saturday Night

Mrs. E. G. Varga, the former Violet O'Brien, was surprised Saturday night with a miscellaneous shower in the home of Mrs. Dan O'Brien, 41 Greenwood avenue. Assisting Mrs. O'Brien was Mrs. H. Holmes, Mrs. Martha Shasky, Miss Marjorie Shasky and Mrs. Catherine McDonald.

Guests played games as the diversion of the evening. Luncheon was served buffet style, from a table attractively decorated in keeping with St. Patrick decorations.

During the evening Mrs. Varga was surprised with a telephone call from her husband, Sgt. Edward G. Varga, who is stationed at Camp Crowder, Mo. Out-of-town guests present at the affair were the Misses Teresa and Catherine McDonald of Canton, Herbert Richie, Miss Theresa Varga and Miss Dorothy Barbara of Crestline, and Miss Golda Gortner of Lexington.

Fete Grandfather, Father and Son Having Birthdays

Louis Gregoria, Anthony Gregoria and Louis Gregoria, grandson, father and son, respectively, were honored Sunday with a dinner in honor of the three birthdays, which are March 14.

The dinner was given in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gregoria, 52 Johns avenue. A reception was held in the evening. When dinner was served, a color scheme of pink, white and blue was used. The table was centered with three birthday cakes.

Cards were played during the evening, and prizes won by Anthony Gregoria and Patsy Gregoria.

Get Chic Ski Suit, Have Fun

Julie Bishop models, left, hooded jacket of red water repellant fabric, midnight blue trousers; center, navy blue down-hill pants, white jacket; right, RAF blue suit, red visored cap.

Since the government has requested that civilians cut down on train travel this winter, the gay parties that use to fill ski trains and go for week ends at winter resorts have had to curtail their trips.

But this doesn't mean that there are not still lots of opportunities for enthusiasts to enjoy their favorite sports.

Loads of people all over the country have discovered for the first time that there are pretty fair spots in their own community for winter sports. They can take a tip from younger sisters and brothers and be almost positive to locate a place within walking distance or a bus ride from their own home where skiing and skating can be had.

Not as DeLuxe, But Fun.

Though the accommodations are not as de luxe as they would be at the famous wintering places, there is still lot of fun to be found on the local pond and the home-grown ski and toboggan runs.

So if you haven't had on a ski suit all season, it's high time you got yourself one and joined in the community winter sports.

The three ski outfits shown in the above photographs are all modelled by Julie Bishop and are both smart and practical. They make use of some of the newer priority free materials, but are just as warm and comfortable as the pre-war styles.

One is a clever combination of white and navy blue. Navy blue down-hill pants are topped off with a white water repellant jacket with a matching visored cap.

The second style features a hooded jacket that is reminiscent of a parka. It is made of brilliant red water repellant fabric, has two pockets and a drawstring at the waistline and hood closing. The trousers are in midnight blue.

The third outfit is in Royal Air Force blue. The jacket has vertical pockets and fastens high at the neckline, which is finished off with a trim turned-down collar. The visored cap is bright red to contrast with the blue of the suit.

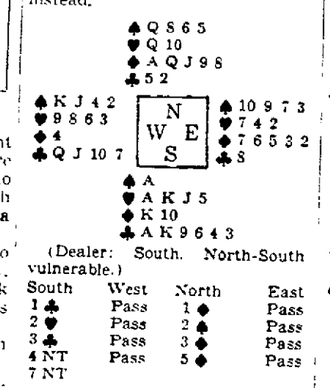
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

NOW "VICTORY COUP"

As with devotees of other games, addicts of bridge keep changing the names of various bids and plays. Originally "Vienna Coup" meant any play whereby either opponent, or both of them, found it impossible to make any discard except one which would give up a trick. Then the veteran Sidney Lenz found a better general term for such plays, "Squeezes." When that term became popular, "Vienna Coup" was applied only to those squeezes which were prepared by first laying down a high card which set up a lower one for an opponent, who later was squeezed between that and one or two other suits. Now some players have dropped that name and use "Victory Coup" instead.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

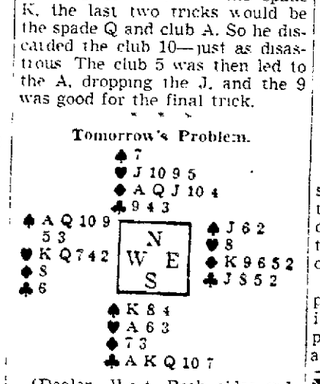
South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♦	Pass
7 NT

As soon as West led the club Q and South saw the dummy, he was sure the contract could not possibly be made except by a squeeze, as only 12 tricks were in sight, and not even a finesse beckoned. His best chance was to find West—already marked with the dangerous clubs—also holding the spade K. If that was the case, a "Vienna" or "Victory" coup could be worked on him.

Launching the play, South, after winning the lead with the club K, laid down the spade A, which immediately set up the K, no matter who held it. Then he proceeded with his run of tricks, cashing four hearts and five diamonds. As the last of these was laid down, to the eleventh trick, the dummy held also the spade Q and club 5, and the closed hand had the club A-9-6.

Until then, West was able to hold his spade K and his club J-10. But, after South discarded a club on the last diamond, West was wrecked. If he tossed the spade K, the last two tricks would be the spade Q and club A. So he discarded the club 10—just as disastrous. The club 5 was then led to the A, dropping the J, and the 9 was good for the final trick.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer, West. Both sides vulnerable.)

If West bids both of his suits, North his diamonds and South winds up in 3-No Trumps, what card should West lead if East doubles? What if he does not double?

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"How dare that man attempt to spy on me!" Philip Veritzen said, and seeing that the great impressario was too absorbed in this offense to his dignity to heed my father's injunction I said softly, "I'll see to Georges, Father," and walked to the door through which Olina had whisked Georges, at my father's command.

I was in too much of a hurry to knock, but was sorry I had not when the opened door showed me Georges standing with Olina's hands clasped in his, his dark eyes holding hers in an eloquent interchange of glances.

I recalled my earlier judgment that Georges had a "roving eye," not noting the ordinary pretty girl, for the fastidious and fascinating young king always had been able to intrigue the imagination of the beautiful and fairly gifted women in his world.

Romantic Reunion.

But both Olina and Mary had once pricked the bubble of Georges' self-esteem, not vanity, for of that Georges has almost none. Olina had run away from the idea of an arranged marriage with him, while Mary had chosen Noel in preference to Georges and his throne.

And now Fate had brought this glamorous fugitive back into the lives of Olina and Mary and her husband. Noel and Georges appeared to be picking up the pattern of romance where he had left off weaving it. He now held Olina's hands in a loverlike clasp, while only a few hours ago he had been taxing Mary with being unhappy.

Inadvertently I had been a witness of both romantic scenes.

Olina's cheeks, as she saw me, flushed hotly, and involuntarily she tried to draw her hands away from their pleasurable imprisonment. But Georges must have clasped them tighter, and his eyes held dancing, mocking gleams as they followed Olina's to mine.

Pretty Compliment.

"Lucky you're a woman, Aunt Madge," he said. "If you were anything muscline, from nine to ninety, you'd be so eaten up with envy of me that you'd have a stroke."

"I fancy I might manage to survive," I improvised rapidly, "but my father wishes you to lock this door. He thinks Milner is on his way up here."

"Milner!" they gasped as with one voice. "What for?"

"I don't know," I said curtly. "Lock the door."

As I heard the click of the lock my father gave a nod of approval, saying "Good work!" then looked around with the air of a general planning his campaign.

Spencer Sets the Stage.

"We mustn't have the appearance of expecting him," he said. "Margaret please go sit beside Olga, both so far away you won't need to notice Milner unless he speaks directly to you. Better pretend to be absorbed in talking. Philip, suppose you and I sit in those chairs opposite each other, then when he knocks you will be taking just long enough in going to the door. And, Philip, treat him in ordinary fashion."

Already I was at Olga's side. The men took their seats and for a minute we sat rigidly waiting. Then the knock sounded. Philip Veritzen strode to the door and we heard his voice speaking with frosty courtesy.

"Ah, Mr. Milner! Good evening. Won't you come in?"

Marriage Can Be Beset By Irritations

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The course of marriage, like everything else, is beset by "doldrums" — depressed times when things just go wrong. Men and women really care as much, but like becalmed ships, they drift—

When husbands and wives get that tired feeling about each other, they should apply the same degree of common sense they do to their business troubles, the leak in the roof, the cold in the head, etc. They would find, five times out of six, the state of affairs someone has called "a malarial marriage" would yield to treatment.

Instead, they keep on, becoming more and more irritated, until finally they land in Reno and the divorce courts. The whole thing may have started with a silly little thing, such as the story which SHE remembers hearing her husband tell several times lately, and every time he tells it, the point gets a little further off and the details a little longer winded. She lets this harmless little weakness eat into her soul and dry up kindness and forebearance.

More than likely, Father is telling his favorite story to keep up his courage; things may not have gone well with him at the office, and trying to appear cheerful he reverts to that old reliable story. Mother becomes irritated, and that starts everything off.

The poor woman may be having her own troubles which she hesitates mentioning to father—daughter has been staying out all hours, and when mother reminds her that two o'clock is hardly a seemly hour, the girl is downright impertinent and says things that are bitter to hear. The girl is the apple of her father's eye, and goodness only knows what Father might do if anything is said about her "goings-on." So Mother keeps her own counsel and listens again to the story . . .

Doesn't sound very dramatic, does it? But this is the way it began — the separation and divorce of two good friends of mine who had been married for twenty-two years. It would have been so simple if they just had talked things over, or even taken a vacation from each other for a month or so, while things blew over.

RION'S SMITH ILL OPPOSING LEND-LEASE

Legislator Says Program inders War Effort of U. S. and Allies.

(By Associated Press)

SHINGTON — Rep. Fred- C. Smith, Republican of is willing tq go down in as an out-and-out oppo- of lend-lease. He voted t it originally and stuck to is last week when the house ed continuance of the pro- of aid to the Allies.

appears," said Smith, "that the only member of the to speak in opposition to bill. I am happy for the action."

ng the debate, he gave two s for his attitude: first, that lministration still has $55,- 0,000 of lend-lease money to and second, the program ood for the country.

is my studied conviction," told the house, "that this is actually injuring our ffort instead of aiding it; has in it potentialities to e peace for us, and the pos- es of completely undermin- economy and involving our y in some sort of interna- or world economic and so- der that would destroy us independent nation."

aring that lend-lease is be- ed to evolve a politically- d world state, Smith said ms a part of a grandiose of bureaucrats and politi- directed by the president, for our country a different f economy and government e have heretofore been liv- der.

d-lease is being used as a mixture for aiding the war effort, and global economic and social planning. * * *

"The term 'lend-lease' is a complete misnomer, and, so far as I can find out, nothing even remotely comparable with this scheme can be found anywhere in the history of mankind. * * *

"More and more we in America are coming to realize that there is a limit on what this nation is able to produce. We are reaching the place where we are feeling the pinch of rationing. We are reaching the end of our manpower and shall shortly be compelled to curtail the size of our army or cut down on production. Already the production of food is seriously affected and likely to become worse instead of better.

"Under lend-lease American goods have been distributed over the whole earth. Forty-six nations are eligible to receive gifts, though only a few of these are actually engaged in the war. We may shortly come to realize that goods intended as war aid have been scattered so widely and spread so thinly as to be ineffective anywhere."

FIND HELICOPTER VALUABLE IN VARIETY OF ARMY MISSIONS

By CLARK LEE

WRIGHT FIELD, O.—(AP)— The big army bomber, badly shot up by Jap anti-aircraft guns and by swarms of Zero fighters after completing its mission against enemy shipping at Rabaul, has made a crash landing in the mountains of New Guinea.

Three of its crew were wounded by enemy bullets, two others injured in the landing on a heavily wooded plateau. The spot is only 20 miles by air from our nearest air field, but it would take days to hack a path through the jungle wilderness.

Several other big bombers are circling overhead; helpless except to parachute food and medicine to the men standing beside the wreckage of their plane.

Suddenly a queer-looking craft drops through the air, straight toward the wreck. It has no wings, but on its oddly shaped fuselage are painted the white stars of the U. S. Army Air Corps. With its double rotor blades beating the air, the helicopter slips between two trees, hovers over the wreckage and then settles down to rest on the fuselage of the bomber.

One by one, the wounded men and the others of the bomber crew are taken aboard and carried back to their base. . . .

That hypothetical rescue mission is just one of the jobs which the Army Air Corps envisages for the helicopter, whose "development" was announced today by the army air forces in a statement from Wright Field.

Helicopters have been flying for some years, but the army's announcement is the first official indication that they have reached a point of military usefulness.

The helicopter exhibited by the army is a two-place ship, which has been ordered in production quantities from the Vought-Sikorsky company. The original model of the present craft was designed by Igor Sikorsky in 1939, demonstrated by him in 1940, and then simplified and improved as a result of tests made both by the army and the inventor.

With its 36 foot rotors swinging horizontally above the fuselage, the helicopter can rise or descend vertically, fly forward or backward, "shy to either side or bounce about on the air," spin like a top on its vertical Axis, or hover motionless over a definite spot. The plane needs no landing field or take-off runway. It can be set down in any place large enough to accomodate its rotors, its length of 38 feet and its height of 12 feet.

Even if the motor quits, the pilot doesn't have to worry. He sticks the nose of the 2,400-pound craft earthward, the wind swings the rotor blades and the helicopter windmills gently to the ground.

The army expects to use the helicopter for numerous military missions, especially liaison and message work. For instance, a telephone line can be dropped from the craft and messages delivered personally in inaccessible spots without necessity of landing.

The helicopter could also operate from any ship deck large enough to accommodate its bulk. It floats, it can fly from land, water, snow, marsh or thin ice.

It would also lend itself, the army points out, "to adaptation as an aerial ambulance for removal of injured from jungle or other remote areas often virtually inaccessible to ground crews or to be reached only by long and arduous effort. There are several recent instances in the case of crashed bombers where a helicopter could have accomplished rescues in hours rather than days."

Till DOC Comes Marching Home . . .

His "Little Black Bag" Is Yours!

A MESSAGE TO THE "FOLKS AT HOME"

Today, more than forty thousand of our doctors are in Army khaki or Navy blue. Your doctor—if he hasn't left already—may be called any day; for our country's armed forces need every able-bodied physician they can get! Till that happy day when "Doc" comes marching home again, his old job—that of keeping your family healthy—will be largely yours and ours. That job is vital to the war effort; this year—as never before—we must keep working for victory at top efficiency.

Dr. Thomas Parran, Surgeon General of the U. S. Public Health Service, asks us to do these things to relieve the situation: "Those not critically ill should spare the doctor night calls. Those who can get about should see him in his office instead of asking him to come to their home. And all of us should put medically-approved preventive measures into practice." As a patriotic citizen, we urge you to follow Dr. Parran's advice. And here are several "preventive measures" that all of us can take *now:

1. Is Your Family Getting the Proper Vitamins?

Many common foods are now scarce, or rationed in your own protection. Therefore, care in meal-planning is more important than ever. You must select and prepare those foods which have the maximum vitamin content. And, if necessary, supplement your diet with a reliable vitamin preparation from your nearest Weinberger Store. Weinbergers are Ohio's largest sellers of vitamin products, serving over 183,000 people a year with more than 160 different preparations!

2. Prevent Accidents . . . . . Learn First-Aid!

If you haven't already received your certificate in First-Aid, enroll in a class taught by a qualified Red Cross instructor at once. Learn what to do (and what not to do) in case of accident—learn the common sense rules of accident prevention. Check your medicine chest to make sure you have enough first-aid supplies. Our stores offer a large selection of first-aid kits, complete in every detail, and many other essentials for first-aid.

3. Proper Home Nursing, Means Quicker Recovery!

Can you take care of a sick person at home properly? Bathe him, prepare the right food, read his pulse, make him comfortable, follow the doctor's instructions? Home Nursing training will teach you these things, which are a life-long asset. We suggest that every housewife enroll in a Home Nursing Class. And, in case of illness, we offer a complete stock of standard sick-room supplies.

4. Most Important . . . . . Keep Yourself Healthy!

Your country needs your energies more than ever. Get plenty of rest. Eat wisely. Don't neglect your exercise. Learn to relax. Cultivate an absorbing hobby to help you forget your worries. Learn to stay healthy in cooler house temperatures, to avoid drafty rooms, overheating and sudden chilling. Walk more, too—you'll find it good for the figure and general health—and it will save gas and tires!

"Will you maybe do me a favor, huh?" petitioned Madison Mentor Al Frendrick in the dubious manner of a guy who didn't expect the favor to be granted.

"Well, huh," I retorted, in the manner of a guy looking about to see on which side of the fence to jump.

"It's just this," says Al. "Talk Fredericktown into challenging us for a football game next fall. I've asked them, but haven't made much headway. And we need some games.

"You can point out to 'em," continues Fendrick, "that Fredericktown always gave us a good battle back in those old Mid-State league days, BUT THEY NEVER BEAT US.

"And now they've got a good team, with Ollie Cline, one of the leading scorers of the state, and they've got an awfully good chance of getting that victory they missed so often back in the good old days."

I don't know whether I'll bring this matter to the attention of the Freddies or not. I wouldn't want to see the Rams get beat.

But he who runs may read. And they tell me that Ollie Cline can really run.

"Maybe you think we don't need games?" says Fendrick.

"Here's the way our schedule looked to start with: Sept. 17 at New London; Sept. 24, open: Oct. 1 at Orrville: Oct. 8 open; Oct. 15 at Loudonville: Oct. 22 at Marion St. Mary's: Oct. 29 Bellville here: Nov. 5, Crestline here.

"We got one break, booking Galion here on Oct. 22 and cancelling the Marion trip, but we still have to fill those open dates, and at home.

"Fredericktown and Cline would be a great drawing card on one of those early dates. In fact some of our fans wanted that game last year. Fredericktown might beat us too, but it would be a game worth seeing.

"I'll have a fair backfield next fall with Anthony and Bader back from last year, and Eccles up from the reserves. But I don't know about the line. Right now I haven't any tackles, with Dick Bishop and Jack Morrison headed toward the service. For guards there are Captain Wallace Campbell, Joe Harsman and Red Higgins, for center Bud Rose and Shriver, and ends, Tucker and Snyder."

That would be something to see, at that. Bob Anthony and Ollie Cline tearing up and down the field on a dry night in early autumn.

Barney Feels Insignificant

War Hero Says Others Did Much More Than He.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Corp. Barney Ross came home last night to his own "mob," the right writers.

After weeks of public appearances he sat down with his old pals at a small private party the boxing writers gave him.

And in the simple, easy way that made him the sports writers' fighter," the one-time world welterweight and lightweight champion admitted to the boys that he shouldn't have been singled out for a hero's role from the marine action on Guadalcanal.

There was some argument about this. The writers pointed out that he had killed 22 Japs one night last November while standing by and protecting three wounded marine buddies.

"Yes," he explained, "but I feel so insignificant, because I'm only one of the many thousands who have done as much—in fact, most of them have done a whole lot more than I have. But I was lucky. And I'll never forget that the Lord had his arms around my neck and kept them there all the time I was in action."

The only formality about the party was a presentation to Ross by Publisher Nat Fleischer, of the Ring Magazine merit award for 1942. This, along with the Edward J. Neil memorial trophy the Boxing Writers association presented him previously, just about clinched the little corporal's rating as "boxing's man of the year."

OUTFIELDER DIES

PORTSMOUTH—(AP)—Earl Smith, former American league and American Association outfielder, is dead. Smith played with the Washington Senators, the St. Louis Browns of the American league and Columbus and Minneapolis of the Association. He had been working at a war plant at nearby South Point the past year.

Poor Record Quintet Looms As B Titlist

Kent Got Tough By Playing In Class A League During Season.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The team with the poorest record loomed today as the most feared of the 16 class B entrants in Saturday's Ohio high school regional basketball tournaments.

The "team to beat" tag was hung on Kent State's all-senior squad, which had won only seven of 22 games before hitting the district meet at Kent, and despite the fact three unbeaten clubs and a flock of other good-record teams are among the regional qualifiers.

Kent State is the only one of the 16 Class B finalists ever to win the state championship. It turned the trick in 1927.

The result—Kent State 40, Clearview 35.

Next came Champion, with a 20-game winning streak, as Kent's foe, with a regional qualifying spot hanging in the balance.

The result—Kent State 39, Champion 33.

The answer to the poor pre-tournament record is that Kent played in the Metropolitan league, as its only Class B member, and the competition against the big, tough Class A squads may have built the boys up to the spot where "B" opponents look easy.

Middle Point of Van Wert county, with 24 straight conquests, carries to No. 1 record into the Class B regionals, followed by Webster township of Wood county, and Utica with 22 each.

In Class A the unbeaten contingent is Martins Ferry 22, Defiance 21, and Greenfield McClain 17. Plain City's winning streak of 27 was ended in the Central District finals by Litttle Berlin of Delaware county, 30-29, and Pickaway Township's 19-game stretch was halted by Utica, 41-30, as the latter remained undefeated in 22 starts. Greenfield McClain had the most narrow escape, needing two overtime periods to defeat Chillicothe.

Six former Class A state champs bowed out in the district finals, but five others—Newark (1936 and 1938), Dover (1927 and 1933), Martins Ferry (1941), Akron West (1932), and the defending Xenia Centrals—remained in the running. Ousted were: Delaware (1913 and 1915), New Philadelphia (1940), Akron North (1935 and 1939), Marietta (1914), Portsmouth (1931), and Plain City (1911.)

One game remains in district play. Marion Harding and Newark meet Monday to determine the Central area's qualifier for the Dayton regional.

* * *

Class A regionals are scheduled Saturday at Kent, Zanesville, Bowling Green and Dayton, with Class B regionals at Kent, Bowling Green, Athens and Springfield. Four teams will compete in each, one surviving from each tournament to compete in the state finals here March 27. The Kent and Zanesville jousts will start Friday.

Here's the regional lineup, with the won-lost records of the qualifiers:

CLASS A

At Bowling Green: Port Clinton 15-3, vs. Defiance 21-0; Toledo Woodward 14-3, vs. Lima Central 15-5.

At Zanesville: Greenfield 17-0, Dover 14-5, Martins Ferry 22-9, and Akron Kenmore 14-6.

At Kent: Canton McKinley 18-2, vs. Akron West 14-5; Canton Lehman 18-3, vs. East Cleveland Shaw 13-4.

At Dayton: Xenia Central (defending champion) 15-2, vs. Cincinnati Elder 10-5; Middletown 14-3, vs. either Newark 21-2, or Marion Harding 16-2.

CLASS B

At Bowling Green: Webster Township 22-0, vs. Middle Point 24-0; Pettisville 19-1, vs. Wharton 18-3.

At Springfield: Berlin 18-3, vs. Plainville 16-5; Tipp City, 15-3, vs. Centerville 9-3.

At Kent: Bolivar 10-9, vs. Kent State 10-15; Waynesburg 23-2, vs. Hartville 18-2.

At Athens: Utica 22-0, Rome 19-5, Yorkville 28-6, and Corning.

Xenia Central's Class A champs are the only team making a third straight trip to the select 16, but Akron Kenmore, Greenfield and Canton Lehman in Class A, and Yorkville, Webster Township, Tipp City and Waynesburg are in the Class B finals for the second straight year.

The No. 1 game in Class B looms Saturday afternoon at Bowling Green, where Webster Township, with 22 straight wins, tangles with Middle Point, victor of 24 in a row.

Majors Have 17 Holdouts

Yankees Set Pace With 4 Unsigned Batterymen.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Major league baseball officially opens its spring training season today with at least 17 members of its sparse roster classified as holdouts.

* * *

The New York Yankees set the pace with four unsigned batterymen even though Pitcher Ernie Bonham said the terms offered were agreeable. He didn't initial the contract, however.

* * *

Ten of the 16 American and National league clubs start their season grind today. A player automatically becomes a holdout when his club begins its drills and his name isn't on a pact.

Catcher Bill Dickey and Pitchers Atley Donald, and Spud Chandler are on the outside along with Bonham.

The St. Louis Cardinals unpack their bags in Cairo, Ill., with only Harry Walker, reserve outfielder, unsigned.

Walker's brother, Dixie of the Brooklyn Dodgers, also has intimated that he may not play this summer. In addition, the Dodgers have three full-fledged holdouts in Pitchers Rube Melton and Buck Newsom and Catcher Mickey Owen.

The St. Louis Browns have no holdouts while the Cleveland Indians have only Jeff Heath, outfielder, outside the fold.

The New York Giants were unable to sign veteran Dick Bartell before the practices got under way. In addition, First Baseman Johnny Mize and Catcher Hank Danning remained at their homes awaiting induction orders.

Jerry Priddy and Mickey Vernon, third baseman and first sacker, are squabbling over their salaries with the Washington Senators.

Catcher Dixie Parsons is at odds with the Detroit Tigers and Gerald Walker, an outfielder, objects to the cut given his pay by the Cincinnati Reds.

The Phils have two definite holdouts in Pitcher Johnny Allen and First Baseman Eddie Murphy and have no word from Ed Levy, another first sacker.

Virtually all the six remaining clubs list some dissatisfied players but they can not be termed holdouts.

TICKETS UNCASHED

NEW YORK—(UP)—Patrons of Racing's Victory Week at Belmont Park last November still are holding $2,758.35 worth of winning tickets. Most of them are $2 tickets, but one of those uncashed is a $50 show ticket.

Army Lets Boxing Titles Rest Until After War's Won

By DILLON GRAHAM
(AP Features Sports Editor)

NEW YORK — The army encourages boxing among its soldiers and provides coaches but there is no plan now for army boxing championships.

That'll have to wait until after the war.

The army, however, does approve of inter-camp competitions between camp teams located in the same area. Under present policies there will be no extension of these inter-camp meets to a national basis.

Soldiers are permitted to enter Golden Glove tournaments in their areas, with the permission of their commanders. If they survive the sectional rounds they are permitted to go to the national finals, upon approval of their commanders.

There have been suggestions that the army sanction sectional elimination tournaments to select contenders for national championships in the various weights, but present army policy is against such title meets for the duration.

However, there are plans for post-Armistice championships, although nothing will be done until the fighting ends. Then elimination tournaments, both domestic and foreign, probably will be held. It is likely that similar competitions will be arranged for navy, marine and coast guard fighters and that the champions of the various military branches will meet for all-service titles. These post-war competitions will be conducted during the period when demobilization is underway, and while soldiers are waiting to be mustered out.

Soldiers who were professional boxers are permitted to compete in intra-camp and inter-camp competitions now and will be allowed to compete in the post-war all-army and all-service championships.

Many prominent professional fighters have served as boxing tutors at army camps, in addition to their regular army duties. Among these are heavyweight champion Joe Louis, former heavyweight champion Max Baer, and former light heavy king Billy Conn.

While the different services undoubtedly will uncover some excellent boxing prospects, and perhaps some future champions, it is likely that if the war doesn't last too long, and if they are around, Conn and Louis will fight it out for the all-army championship. It is difficult to imagine the other services turning up with a contender who might defeat Billy or Joe for the all-service crown.

That might also bring up the question as to whether Louis' world championship would be at stake in any military competitions in which he participates. Louis' title, and those of the other champions in uniform, has been frozen for the duration. However, a heavyweight risks his crown every time he fights and if Louis should fight, after the war and before he is discharged, and be beaten, his conqueror might be recognized as champion. That's a situation boxing bodies would have to rule on at that time.

Adams Takes Two Rifle Club Events

E. Adams took the off-hand matches of the Mansfield Muzzle Loader Rifle club Saturday with a percentage of 73.3 in five events, while J. Adams was second with 50 per cent, and A. Wagner third with 49.9.

* * *

E. Adams also copped the 30-yard off-hand string measure match with a measurement of only 1.02 inches for the total distance from center for three shots. E. Smith was second with 1.86, and R. Barr third with 2.32.

* * *

J. Baldinger took the 50-yard rest match with an .85 inch strung, and second with 1.32, and E. Adams was third with 1.37.

Ban Stays On Louis-Conn Fight

PITTSBURGH—(INS)—War department officials have ruled against another Louis-Conn fight "at the present time," it was learned today.

* * *

The department rejected a recent proposal that Corp. Billy Conn and Sgt. Joe Louis fight it out for the championship again, with spectators buying war bonds ranging from $25 to $10,000 as the price of admission.

* * *

Major A. D. Surles, on behalf of Secretary Stimson, reported that such a contest "would interfere with the training assignments of both Conn and Louis."

Pro Charges Shake Joust

Simon-Pures Protest Against Army Cager.

DENVER—(INS)—In the wake of a controversy on the amateur-or-pro status of one of its star players, the crack quintet from Fort Warren, Wyo., today held the spotlight in the 1943 National A. A. U. basketball tournament at Denver as spirited competition boomed through the second round.

* * *

Sgt. Julius Rivlin, purportedly a former professional cager from Akron, O., was the principal character in the row that burst after he had assisted his teammates in pinning an 83 to 36 defeat upon the Denver Capitol Life quintet.

* * *

J. Lyman Bingham, assistant to the president of the National A. A. U., questioned Rivlin about his amateur status after receiving a complaint from some unidentified simon-pure source.

Rivlin gave Bingham neither an affirmative or negative answer about his reported past as a pro. "He was evasive," said Bingham.

Explaining that the A. A. U. itself was not making any charges, Bingham said:

"It was believed that Rivlin entered this tournament as an amateur. If the Fort Warren authorities discover there has been a mistake, they can certify Rivlin as a pro. The Fort Warren team then can continue without Rivlin. It's simply up to the army."

It was learned that the Fort Warren authorities do not plan to announce any change in Rivlin's status and their crack team will face 20th Century-Fox of Hollywood tomorrow night, as scheduled, with Rivlin in the lineup.

* * *

With Rivlin and Corp. Benny Schall, a former University of Toledo star, in the line-up, Fort Warren now ranks as a real "dark horse" for the National title being defended by the Denver American Legion quintet. Schall tallied 39 points last night, only 9 from the all-time A. A. U. record of 48 set by Larry Toburen of Denver U. a few years back.

"Quick death" loomed today for an additional group of hopeful quintets. By tomorrow night, the original field of 38 teams will be slashed to 16.

Ev Shelton's University of Wyoming Cowboys still remain the "team to beat." The Cowboys, aiming to capture both the A. A. U. and N. C. A. A. titles for a "grand slam," will meet their first competition tomorrow night when they clash with the winner of today's tilt between Howard Payne college of Texas and Piedmont college of Georgia.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—A 10-round bout scheduled for March 24 between light heavyweight Anton Christoforidos of Geneva, O., and Lloyd Marshal of San Francisco has been cancelled because the Ohioan doesn't "care to fight any more."

Bosox Depend On Newcomers

Six Rookies Hope To Make Big League Grade.

CHICAGO—(INS)—The Boston Red Sox hope to find several regular starters among the newcomers on their club during the 1943 campaign.

Here is a bird's eye view of some of the newcomers:

Tommy McBride—Irish, 190-and six feet tall. Up from Little Rock, he will try for one of the many vacant Red Sox outfield berths. He hopes he can start hitting as he did one afternoon back in 1936 for Longview, Tex. Playing in a double header, Tommy had seven hits in nine trips, five being triples. His father played for Bonham, Tex., in the old Texas-Oklahoma circuit.

Lou Lucier—Rookie pitcher up from Louisville and French by descent, he started as an infielder in high school but when, in his junior year the team ran out of hurlers, he took the mound. A right hander, Lucier is married and has a child.

* * *

Verne Richards—Catcher, who is another Louisville hopeful. A graduate of American Legion baseball, played with Joe Gordon, their legion club winning the state and northwestern title two out of four years.

* * *

Johnny Lazor—Husky rookie up from Louisville likes the outdoors. He would have gone into forest ranger work had he failed to make good at the Boston baseball school held in 1937 at San Diego. He went to the school at his own expense and was one of five signed to contracts from the 60 who worked out. With Canton, O., in 1938 he hit four homers in a double-header one afternoon.

* * *

Robert Ford Garrison—Rookie outfielder up from Fort Worth, says he's "Dutch-Irish, but mostly Irish." He was signed to his first contract, in the fall of 1937, by Sports Editor "Scoop" Latimer of Greenville, S. C., and would have gone into railroading if baseball hadn't won him over.

* * *

Albert William Olsen—Rookie Red Sox pitcher is known as "Lefty," "Al" and "Ole." He won 18 and lost 16 and had a 2.76 earned run average with San Diego last season.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Without even loking at your calendar, you can be sure winter here is over... The final hockey game of an unusual National league season in New York was played last night; the Garden's indoor track season ended Saturday and you couldn't ask for a grander climax to the winter fight season then that howl of welcome nearly 20,000 fans raised when Barney Ross appeared Friday night.

MONDAY MATINEE.

It's official now—a horse wins a race if he gets his nose across the line first. The U. S. Trotting association had to put it into the rule book to settle the arguments that come up after a Hambletonian heat last year when Follow Me got her feet across the line first but was second by a nose.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Braven Dyer, Los Angeles Times: "The Hollywood stars let Oscar Vitt go and bought up his one-year contract . . . Apparently they decided that no Hollywood Oscar was worth the money a contract calls for in these trying times."

Morris (Buck) Jones, former Columbus Redbirds outfielder, reports that Australia is a swell place for a soldier ball player to land . . . Writing to Hob Hooey of the Ohio State Journal, Bob says: "The fans here know very little about baseball and you can get by with anything . . . They cheer you when you drop a ball or make a boot."

Barons Capture Last Loop Tilt

(By United Press)

The Indianapolis Caps walloped the champion Hershey Bears, 8-6, last night to capture second place as the American Hockey league wound up play for 1943.

The Cleveland Barons shoved across four goals in the final period to come from behind and shade the Bisons at Buffalo, 6-5. The loss dropped Buffalo into third place.

Goals by Schmidt and Brown in the last period gained the Providence Reds a 6-4 victory over the invading Pittsburgh Hornets.

TO LIVE WITH LOVE +++

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

CHAPTER XVI

Suddenly the tears stood in his es.

Carol drew back. "I'm sorry. I in't mean."

"You haven't said anything to rt me, Carol."

"You've been very sweet to me." "I didn't prepare you. I just irted out . . . I'm an old fool. t when you said you were go- home . . . You see, I haven't d such a good time since my e died. We used to come to w York and go everywhere. ice she died, I've known girls e, but they were—well, cheap ls after my money. They ldn't talk about anything and y didn't care for me. You're . . you're a lady, Carol. I—I nt you. But if you'd like to nk about it more."

She felt utterly helpless. How ir he was, how sincere, how nest. And how reverently he ieved that a young woman of enty-six and a man of sixty ld be happily married. Poor rnelius who had so felt his in- quacy that an innocent little e from another man had com- tely unbalanced him. She ught, "Why can't I be mer- ary and marry him for his lions? Perhaps in Clinton with and Evelyn looking on I ld have one little moment of umph as Mrs. Cornelius We- . I'd be the richest woman in nton. How silly, as if the money means anything, as if anything means anything except to live with love again."

She was grateful for his sudden smile. "I won't take 'no' for an answer, Carol. I'll pester you. Maybe you'd come out to Detroit and see my home and meet Betty. She'd like you. Poor kid, she had a fit about one of the girls I've taken out. She thought she was cheap, too. But a girl like you."

"Shall we leave it like that then?"

"You won't give me any hope."

Carol drew her coat around her. "I can't. Truthfully, I can't. I don't know anything about divorce except my own. But in my own case I know what it has done to me. I'm not straight. I seem to be all crooked. Divorce doesn't sever you from just one person It severs you from the world you knew before and the people you knew before. It leaves you feeling morally unhealthy. No, I can't give you any hope, Cornelius. I've got to get myself straight again. I'm going home and get a job."

"But if you need anything, you'll let me know? You'll write to me, won't you?"

"Yes, of course. And now . . . let's go please."

On the way to the hotel he was cheerful and solicitous. And standing for the last time at the elevator he said, "You're good and beautiful, Carol. I'll be waiting to hear from you, my dear. You've made me very happy. You see, sometimes I get 'off' on the modern woman. Women aren't like they used to be and they lose a lot from not being. It seems that having a good husband and a family isn't enough for them. But you . . . maybe you'll resent this . . . but you're like my wife in many respects."

"Thank you. That's a real compliment."

He smiled. Then he put her hand to his lips and kissed it.

Stepping on the elevator, she turned and saw him once more briefly. A short, stout little man with gray hair and clear brown eyes, he stood, smiling at her. He would not have liked it, she thought, if he had known that his smile was quite paternal.

Later, looking into the darkness, she thought, "And the first man you meet after your divorce is a man who wants to be your lover. The second is your former husband's friend. And the third is old and rich. Is there a fourth? Or do you choose one of the three? Clive and Scott and Cornelius, as different as day from night . . . But my thoughts about them stop when I listen for Bill's breathing in the next bed and don't hear it . . . I still listen . . ."

The Labor day holiday at the Clinton Yacht club was always one of unusual gayety. All day the previous Saturday, yachts and sailing craft had drawn alongside the pier before the sprawling white club house and preceded either to empty their cargoes or sunburned men and women or to take on more as visitors. Thus the sunny decks were dotted with people drinking tall, cool drinks before luncheon and giving an account of their summer holidays in other places. There was a dance that evening and invitations to this particular dance were long and eagerly anticipated by those who were not members.

Freda and Ian brought their swift, immaculate little cruiser to its berth. After two weeks of constant cruising earlier in the summer and from week-ends since both were burned to a deep, even brown and wore white trousers and white shirts and tennis shoes They were alone now except for the colored boy who had been cooking for them on the fishing trip from which they were returning

Ian shielded his eyes from the glare.

"Looks like a mob," he said.

Freda, her dark hair hidden by a red bandana, thrust her hands deep into the pockets of the trousers and peered through her dark glasses.

"Gets bigger every year, doesn't it?"

"Let's turn around and go out and do more fishing."

She smiled at him. "Don't worry. I won't make you dress and take me to the club for luncheon I can eat fish again here on board."

Several boats away, someone called to them loudly.

"Ian! Freda! Ahoy! Come on over and join us!"

They waved. "Shall we go?" Lan asked.

"Why not? Maybe they'll ask us for lunch. We won't have to dress and I won't have to eat fish . . . I hope."

It was Tom Purnell, Bill Stultevant's boss, who had called to them. Ian had known Tom for many years and one of the few things that had ever startled Ian was Tom's marrying in middle age a girl who had been a model in New York. But even those who had been spontaneously verbal in their belief that the successful Tom could have found a wife in Clinton had to admit that Thelma was both an aggressive and a stunning girl.

The fact that Thelma was often irritatingly aggressive and strongly self-opinionated caused Freda to see her little. About twice a year they dined together and remained the best of acquaintances. Not that Freda disliked Thelma. Rather she admired her good taste in clothes, her management of a handsome house and her unquestioned devotion to the aging Tom. But Thelma had been outrageously spoiled by her husband and Freda found it difficult to agree when she disregarded and stubbornly refused to flatter and cajole and weakly submit to Thelma's strong ideas.

To get on with Thelma one had to follow where she led. Ian had suggested that Thelma's air of superiority shielded one of great inferiority since one or two bold souls had seen fit to remind Thelma that she had not always been the wife of one of Clinton's most successful men.

Ian and Freda jumped to the pier and walked down to Tom's boat. Tom, a big man with a thatch of sandy hair and a rugged face, arose from a deck chair to greet them. Thelma, dressed with studied carelessness in a navy slack suit, her black, curly hair close-cropped, removed dark glasses from her dark eyes.

Tom's big voice boomed. "Hello!" He pumped their hands and slapped Ian on the back and shouted to the colored boy to fix more drinks.

Thelma said, "It's grand to see you! Come and be lazy with us. Do you know . . ."

Evelyn Sturtevant!

Though Evelyn, her amazing dark eyes also hidden by dark glasses, had not moved from the deck chair, Freda had recognized her at once. The black hair growing back from the pronounced widow's peak, the fine features of her face, the fine, lovely body in the white sharkskin playsuit, the beautiful hands with the perfect nails deeply crimson. Evelyn certainly.

Evelyn smiled her slow smile and said in the drawl Freda remembered.

"I've met Mrs Kelly, but I have not met Mr. Kelly."

Tom said laughing, "Well, you know him now."

Ian asked, "Where's Bill?"

"He went up to get some soda," Evelyn said. "We were out of it. He'll be back any moment."

While the men were speaking of fishing, Freda saw Bill with three bottles in his hand walking down the pier. Tall, wearing a brown slack suit, walking in long easy strides, he was the handsomest man she had seen since the last time she had seen him His dark hair was receding slightly, broadening his forehead, and there were feathers of gray at his temples. As he came closer and jumped aboard, she saw that his deep tan accentuated the blueness of his eyes, and the whiteness of his strong teeth. Her heart began to ache for Carol.

She knew that his being so glad to see them was not a pose. He put an arm around Ian and asked. "Where you been, Grandpa?" and said to Freda, holding her hand, "Gosh, it's good to see you two! What have you been up to?"

Freda thought, "I can't hate him any more. Darn it, I just can't. I like him and I've missed him like the dickens. He's so good to look at and so darned nice. There's an innocence about Bill, a humility that gets you. That's why he hasn't any enemies. That's why he's gone so far There were probably smarter men Tom could have selected as his assistant, but he chose Bill perhaps because he likes to have him around Not that Bill isn't smart. He is. But his likability gets him as far as his ability. You can't beat that combination."

More chairs were brought from below to form a circle on the deck. The men talked about war and business and fishing; Thelma held forth on her activities of the summer. She had been on Long Island for several weeks.

PROMISE SMALL WAR PLANTS AID IN SIX MONTHS

New Chairman Sets Deadline For Spreading Out of War Contracts.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Col. Robert W. Johnson, new chairman of the smaller war plants corporation, said today that the problem of keeping little industries alive under the war program can be licked—and he has given himself six months to do the job.

"If I don't do it in that time they'll get rid of me and if I do it by that time they'll also get rid of me because the job will be done," he said in an interview.

Records show that small plants have received only a thin slice of war supply contracts. Johnson's agency has released a list of 252 companies which hold a preponderance of the war supply contracts awarded from June, 1940, to November, 1942.

Johnson said the concentration of war orders in the nation's large industries could be defended while the nation is rushing to rearm and immediately after it was plunged into war. He pointed out that the small plants were not equipped to do a hurry-up job.

He feels, however that this is not the situation today and that the time has come to compel prime contractors to sub-contract their orders in such a way that distressed plants may be preserved to fill a useful role in post war years.

"Is it too late to save little business?" he was asked

"Certainly not," he fired back. "It can be saved—it will be saved."

The dynamic colonel, head of Johnson & Johnson, one of the largest surgical dressing manufacturers in the nation, said the pressure of public opinion would pyramid to such heights that a government not sympathetic to the preservation of little business could not exist.

"The little operator has been the backbone of industry, he is now and will continue to be long after the war has ended," he said.

"Will the present concentration of billions in war orders in big industry pave the way for nation-wide operation of huge cartels after the war?" he was asked

Johnson thought for a few moments and then answered in the negative

"Enlightened self-interest developing into realistic, liberal industrial philosophy will maintain the American way of life — the competitive system and the principle of free enterprise," he continued. "But unless industry leaders, both large and small, adopt such a policy, I wouldn't care to prophesy or describe the result."

Johnson said industrial management is on trial today and has been since the depression.

"If it succeeds in winning back the confidence of the American people, it has nothing to worry about," he said. "If it doesn't, it has plenty to worry about—plenty!"

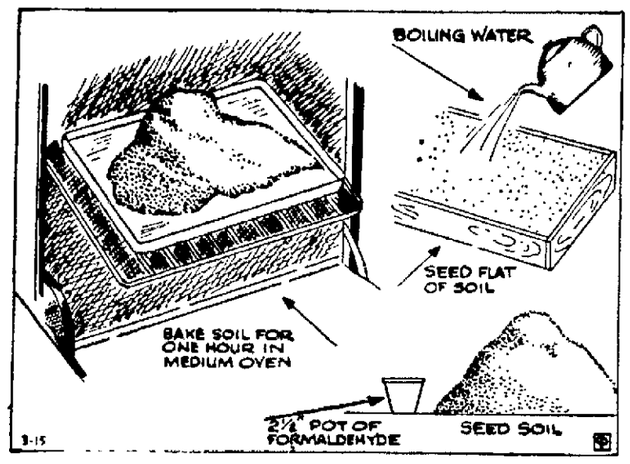
Since taking office a few weeks ago, Johnson has surveyed the entire picture of distressed industries and has an up-to-date report on the number of idle small plants.

Johnson recently called in representatives of the armed services and other procurement agencies to work out a plan for putting small plants to work in the southeast, and reports to his office today indicated that considerable progress has been made.

He has demanded that the services make a report to him within three weeks on the extent to which prime contractors have sub-contracted war orders. He said he probably would call the prime contractors into conference soon to bring about wider sub-contracting and also would put this question before civic authorities.

"We're going to win this fight," he said "We have to."

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Preventing Loss of Plants In Victory Garden

THERE IS NO greater disappointment to a gardener than to have a flat of seedlings become victims of "damping off." To guard against this malady of young plants sterilize seeds, container and soil. A commercially sterilized soil can be purchased, and one can purchase a fungicide at the seed stores with which to sterilize seeds It is worth these troublesome steps in order to have a successful Victory garden.

Three ways of sterilizing seedling soil at home are shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph Figure 1 shows how soil can be sterilized by baking it in the oven for one hour at medium heat If it is baked longer than one hour, some bacteria necessary to the soil will be killed. Allow the soil to cool completely before planting seeds

Figure 2 shows a method of sterilizing soil by steaming. Use 1½ gallons of boiling water to a box of soil 14x30x3 inches.

Figure 3 illustrates the use of formaldehyde dust This is mixed with the top inch of soil before sowing the seeds to help control "damping off." Use a 2½-inch pot of formaldehyde dust to a flat of soil. Water the flat thoroughly after treatment and allow to dry out before planting seeds In addition to sterilizing the soil to prevent "damping off" these treatments will also eliminate weed seeds.

GOOD STAIN REMOVER

FORT COLLINS, Colo—(INS)—Wartime restrictions on various chemicals have narrowed down the choices among stain removers, but one of the best—sodium perborate—is still available, according to Martha Ulrich of the Colorado State college extension service.

STARTS TROUBLE

LEAVENWORTH, Kas. —(AP)— Harry Coblets squeezed into the attic to destroy some wasp nests by using blazing rags, on the end of a stick.

The nests ignited. Coblets started for a bucket of water but he wedged in the attic opening. By the time firemen arrived they found the wasps destroyed—along with part of the roof.

THEATERS

Fonda Movie.

Henry Fonda, who is no stranger to box office laurels rang up a new record during the filming of John Brophy's "Immortal Sergeant" The salvage wardens of El Centro, Cal., invited Fonda to man the ticket booth of the local theater when the 20th Centruy-Fox troupe arrived on location for scenes in the thrilling epic of Rommel's rout in Libya which is now playing at the Ohio. But they weren't selling tickets. The price of admission was ten pounds of scrap metal. Out of a population of 10,000, six thousand attended. The take: 60,000 pounds of antix-axis scrap.

Savitt At Madison.

Another top-ranking dance band comes to Mansfield today when Jan Savitt and his famous Top Hatters play a one day engagement at the Madison. Recognized as a truly great critic of both classic and modern music, Savitt has been broadcasting on the three major networks, NBC, CBS, and Mutual. He comes here after a weeks engagement at a Dayton theater. The pictures are "Tarzan Triumphs," starring Johnny Weissmuller and Frances Gifford and "No Place for a Lady," featuring William Gargan and Margaret Lindsay.

Shows "Pittsburgh"

Activities in half a dozen of the nation's largest defense plants are shown in Universal's "Pittsburgh," now playing at the Park. Since the conversion of private industry into all-out war machine is a dominating factor in the film, Universal sent a camera crew to Pittsburgh to photograph background action in several of that city's largest factories. Marlene Dietrich, Randolph Scott, and John Wayne are the stars of the picture. Co-feature is "Secrets of the Underground."

Log Jammers.

Screen stars Paulette Goddard, Fred MacMurray and Susan Hayward had to learn "burling" for their roles in "The Forest Rangers," now playing at the Ritz. "Burling" is the art of walking on floating logs and making them spin. If you think it's easy, try it sometime. 'Henry Aldrich, Editor" is the co-attraction.

BIG NEWS . . . IS GOOD NEWS

FOR ADVERTISERS!

A lot of thoughtful advertisers have been raising questions about the potency of newspaper advertising during "Big News" periods. When news interest shoots upward, do advertisers' opportunities decline? Do exciting headlines and dispatches cause people to pay less attention to the ads?

Current newspaper research indicates the opposite is true.

The Second World War certainly qualifies as "Big News" this war has demonstrated three ways in which "Big News" affects newspaper reading

First, MORE PEOPLE READ NEWSPAPERS. A recent study made by The Bureau of Advertising reveals substantial circulation gains by newspapers in all parts of the country this year over last year.

Naturally, the more news there is, and the more important it is, the more papers are bought and read. Partial news coverage by other media merely whets people's desire to get the WHOLE story . . . in newspapers.

Second, PEOPLE SPEND MORE TIME WITH THEIR NEWSPAPERS. War news or other "Big News" usually means ADDITIONAL reading . . . over and above the habitual reading of the local news, the regular departments, the continuing features, and the advertisements in the newspaper.

Third, and even more important, "Big News" tends to INCREASE, RATHER THAN DECREASE, THE READING OF NEWSPAPER ADS.

Evidence From All Angles Proves That "Big News" Is GOOD News For Advertisers

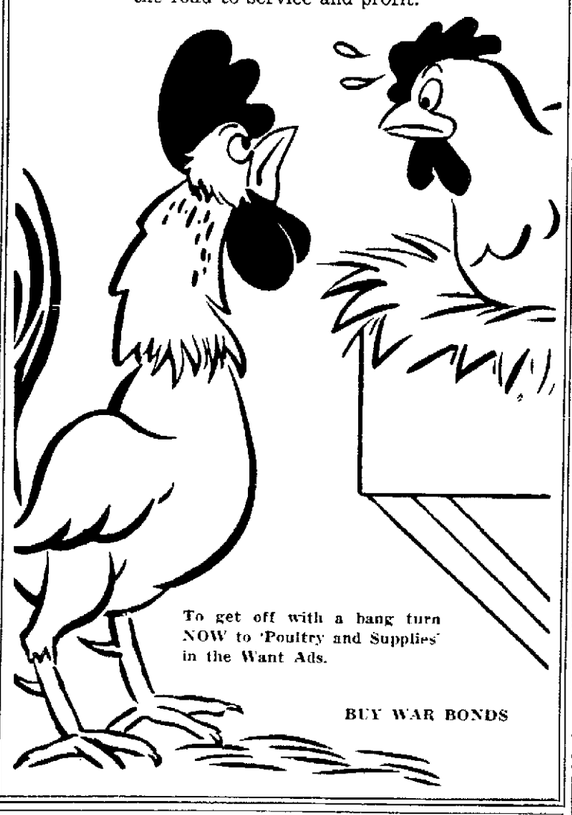
YOU MUST LAY EGGS FOR 10,000,000 SOLDIERS

Patriotic money-wise citizens must rally to Uncle Sam's need for more and still more eggs.

The war budget probably provides $1,500,000,000 for eggs in 1943. Civilians will buy around $11,500,000,000 worth. Something like $2,000,000,000 more will go to our Allies. An estimated total of $15,000,000,000 in eggs.

YOU can share the profits and the glory of this "must" job and have fun doing it.

Raising chickens is simple. They need never leave the coop. Ask any reputable hatchery how a small investment can start YOU on the road to service and profit.



To get off with a bang turn NOW to 'Poultry and Supplies' in the Want Ads.

IRREGULARITY MARKS STOCK MARKET TRADE

Transportation Systems Plan Improved Facilities for Passenger Service.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK –Prices exhibited slight irregularity in today's early stock market transactions.

Up a shade at a moderately active opening were Douglas Aircraft, Goodyear and Great Northern. Declines were posted for Bethlehem, Western Union, Loew's and Yellow Truck.

Holders of railway equipment issues were encouraged by reports major transportation systems were planning for greatly improved passenger carrying facilities in the post-war period as a means of retaining much of the heavy current traffic.

SAYS GERMANS HATE OWN KIN

Son of Nazi Colonel, Now In U. S. Army, Bitter Against His Father.

CAMP STEWART, Ga. (INS) – "The Nazis even hate their own families," Private Henry Douglas Tempel recalls bitterly. "It might cost my life to even the score but I would not care," he said.

Why the bitterness and hate on the part of a 20-year-old American soldier? His father is a colonel in the German army and a dyed-in-the-wool fanatical Nazi who hounded Tempel and his mother out of Germany because Mrs. Tempel was Jewish and therefore their son half-Jewish, or an "Aryan outcast."

Now Tempel has but one desire: to return to Germany with the American army and "settle a score" with his father "and the rest of the dirty Nazi gang."

"Now I know that when I meet my father face to face it will be me or him. He will try to kill me but I am going to get him and any others of those Nazi butchers I can, too," he declared.

Tempel remembered that his mother and father were happily married until Hitler came to power in 1933. Shortly thereafter his father began to be absent from home at night on mysterious business, Tempel said. Then, he continued his father began to treat him and his mother coldly, finally even beating and cursing them.

"Then one day he went to Munich and met Hitler at a conference," Tempel said. "From that day on he never even spoke to me except when necessary. Finally he gave me the choice of leaving Germany or going to a military concentration camp near Munich."

So Tempel and his mother, in 1937 came to America, where he worked as a silversmith in a Brooklyn firm until the army took him. He had tried to get in ever since Pearl Harbor.

Tempel and his mother are "eternally grateful to America," he said. "This country took us with open arms and all people tried to help us."

Shortly after coming here, he wrote his Nazi father, "I am writing you as Henry Douglas Tempel and proud of it."

WOMAN DRIVER

Girl, 23, Hauls Coal When Men Go To War.

COLUMBUS (INS) – Wheeling a one and a half ton truck loaded with coal from her father's coal yard to Columbus homes is a "pushover" for 23-year-old Agnes McVay but she won't wear slacks. It's too mannish for her.

Her father, Ray F. McVay, works nights on the railroad. Once he had four drivers for his coal trucks but now he has only one. So Agnes volunteered to help. She draws the line on shoveling, however.

"You ought to see the expression on faces of housewives when I back the truck up to their homes," Agnes commented. "Practically all of them say 'What are you doing in that truck?'"

For coal hauling Agnes prefers a black slumbing dress, a reversible gray coat, cotton mesh stockings and the conventional women's boots. Add a red checkered scarf and she's outfitted for her deliveries.

"But slacks are out," she declared. "After all, I still want to be a woman."

CLEVELAND – (AP) – Fire destroyed several storage buildings at the Brookhead Carroll Lumber Co. yesterday, causing damage estimated at $25,000. Firemen said a hot steam pipe started the fire.

Fail to Display Interest In State Garden Courses

COLUMBUS (INS) – Although the agricultural extension service of Ohio State university has offered free lessons in several lines of farm endeavor for the last 30 years, these correspondence courses have attracted the fewest enrollments in late times when they would be of the greatest advantage.

Now, when thousands of Ohio men and women are preparing to grow their first garden, the total enrollment in the vegetable gardening course is less than 100. The largest enrollment is in poultry husbandry with more than 500 students getting material by mail.

One physiological angle of the correspondence course is the interest shown in them by inmates of Ohio penal institution. About 100 men in prison get superficial freedom by studying about farming methods, at the present time. The present total enrollment is 1500.

Against Japanese claims that the U. S. navy has been reduced to that of a third-rate power, now may be placed the figures of known sinkings of Jap warships. These figures come from official communiques since Pearl Harbor and from authoritative data supplied by Sea Power magazine. It should be remembered, of course, that there is no available information regarding the rate of Japanese replacements, although naval experts declare sinkings are far exceeding new building by the Japs. It is known also that they are converting cargo and passenger ships in small aircraft carriers. No figures have been included for the number of Nipponese ships damaged.

SUNDAY TOURING STEPS UP AS DRIVERS OPERATE 'ON HONOR'

(By United Press)

The Sunday driver returned to the highways yesterday throughout the gasoline-rationed east.

Estimates of increased travel ranged from 25 to 75 per cent, the latter figure around New York City despite government pleas for motorists to abstain from pleasure driving on their "honor."

OPA officials refused to comment on the increase. It was pointed out that in the New York area, where travel on Long Island roads was particularly heavy, the motorists possibly were driving out to inspect their summer homes.

Police of suburban Virginia and Maryland areas around Washington found traffic almost back to that of normal peacetime Sundays. Most motorists appeared to be pleasure drivers, police said.

Many cars were parked near Memorial auditorium in Buffalo for last night's hockey game.

ATLANTA (U.P.) OPA and police officials said today that the Atlanta area this week-end experienced what was "probably its heaviest traffic since gasoline rationing went into effect."

Police Traffic Chief G. Neal Ellis reported 16 accidents with 14 injuries over the week-end and said that this was the "most accidents and injuries reported for week-end traffic in many months."

Attorney Ralph Quillian of the state Office of Price Administration said that in an unofficial survey which he made Sunday afternoon, he found traffic "extremely heavy."

War Veteran, 100, Says Age 'Kinda Wearing Me Down'

FINDLAY – (INS) – Hancock county's only living Civil war veteran celebrating his 100th birthday admitted that "time is kinda wearing me down."

John Hart enlisted with the 21st regiment when he was 19 years old participating in the memorable battle of Stone river, 30 miles from Nashville, Tenn. Had it not been for a severe illness of typhoid fever he would have been with General Sherman on the historic march to the sea.

"War is terrible," he says. "I know I've been through it all. "The Old Scratch himself couldn't make it any worse," thus putting a little differently General Sherman's famous statement concerning war.

Boasting that he hasn't been under the doctor's care for the past two years, he attributes no particular reason for his long life. He says he never smoked "although at election time he always had a hatful of stogies."

RATION POINT HIKE EXPECTED

Greater Allowance of Canned Goods Due; Wickard Gets Forecast Today.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON – The OPA today considered increasing the consumer's number of ration points for canned goods as Food Czar Wickard planned to tell the public just what it can expect in the way of food during the next 12 months.

According to preliminary reports from OPA field workers, the sale of rationed canned goods is proceeding at a slower rate than was expected. If this continues, it was said, the OPA may increase the canned goods allotment from 48 to 64 points a month in April.

Such an increase, it was pointed out, would make the canned goods program uniform with the point allotment announced this week for meat, and eliminate considerable confusion. A consumer would thus have 64 points a month to spend for canned foods and 64 points a month for meat which will be rationed starting midnight March 28.

A forecast on the nation's food supply for the next year will be made Thursday by Wickard. The farm secretary will release a compilation of reports of farmers' planting intentions gathered by the crop reporting board from every county throughout the nation.

Wickard has told members of congress that he is pessimistic over this nation's ability to meet its food requirements.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—In the things that count, the Republicans in congress are coming through.

Most of them have refused to follow the extreme troublemakers. Some individual speeches may sound violent and indicative of trouble but they seem more like crackpot utterances when considered in the light of the more balanced course that the majority of Republican members are following. The attitude of the Republicans is one of the most impressive things that is going on in American politics today. It is especially important because a national election is coming on next year. The attitude of the minority party, if based on narrow partisan considerations regardless of anything else, could be most injurious to the war and the best interests of the country.

Clapper

We have just seen how the Republicans have refused to make partisan capital out of lend-lease.

Not one of them voted against it in the senate—making it possible for this national policy to continue with a unanimous vote of confidence by the senate. That demonstration of solidarity will mean much in strengthening America's hand abroad. In the house only six votes were cast against continuing lend-lease, three by Michigan Republicans and three by Ohio Republicans.

The Republicans also co-operated to permit final passage of the lend-lease extension on the second anniversary of the act—a dramatic touch that will contribute to the sense of American unity.

These last two days' actions by congress will go far toward wiping out the impression of confusion and division which some of our friends abroad must have received from watching the battle of Washington.

Even more significant than Republican support of lend-lease is the desire of Republican leaders to refrain from a political fight over continuing the trade agreements act. The Republicans have always been overwhelmingly against the reciprocal trade program of Secretary Cordell Hull. Sometimes Republicans have cast unanimous votes in opposition.

Yet Republican leaders are now working to allow the reciprocal trade act to be continued without opposition. That is the advice being given to Republicans in congress by Republican Senate Leader McNary, by Republican House Leader Martin, and by Harrison Spangler, chairman of the Republican national committee.

Wendell Willkie and Governor Stassen of Minnesota both have long supported the reciprocal program and they urge its continuance now. Other Republicans, who have opposed the program and who are still against it, think that a fight at this time would be unfortunate. It would be academic anyway because the trade agreements act has little practical meaning during the war.

What congress does now, and particularly what the Republicans do, is closely noted abroad, because all governments are trying to determine which way America is likely to go after the war.

Republicans have indicated a disposition to cooperate. That was voiced in resolutions adopted by the Republican national committee almost a year ago and re-endorsed at St. Louis on Dec. 7. It was voiced also in a statement of policy by Republican members of congress last September. A resolution by congress is considered desirable by a number of members, some of whom are trying now to hit upon satisfactory language for it.

Some Republicans are interested in such a declaration. As Mr. Willkie pointed out in his recent Indianapolis speech, in all of this Republicans are only going back to McKinley, who said 45 years ago that "isolation is longer possible or desirable."

That was when the United States made its first experiment in imperialism. We withdrew from it. Now we are moving out again but it may be in quite a different way this time, through United Nations co-operation.

ASSEMBLY HITS SNAG ON RECORD STATE BUDGET

Financial Measure Likely to Keep Legislators at Work Longer Than Expected.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—State legislators, touched like other folk by spring fever, returned to the Capitol today wondering how soon they could "wind up the session and get home."

Veteran leaders guessed April 15 would be the earliest possible date, and May 1 the latest.

The record executive budget was the barometer for their calculations and biggest question of the week was whether the house finance committee would total its last columns of figures and recommend the budget to the house for passage.

"The bill might come out this week," Rep. Paul H. Ballard, R., Jackson, chairman of the house finance committee said today. "But you can quote me that its doubtful."

Allowing ten days for the bill to clear the house senate leaders said they could finish work on the budget in two weeks or not more than three.

The senate has paced the house this session and members of the upper chamber are impatient to get to work on the principal job of the session. The senate finance committee has begun work on some portions of the appropriation.

Ballard said his committee has waited for solution of related financial problems such as state salary increases; bills to appropriate $145,000 for new blind and deaf school sites; increased pay for state guardsmen; accumulated claims of local school districts against the state totaling approximately $1,200,000; and rehabilitation of impoverished school districts.

"Aside from these matters which should go into the budget, we could have had our bill ready by today," Ballard said.

WOMAN HURT

Bruised In One or 4 Auto Mishaps Over Week-End.

Mrs. Anna Valerio, 24, of 92 East Sixth street, suffered only injuries reported in four traffic accidents in Mansfield and vicinity during the week-end.

Mrs. Valerio was treated at a physician's office for bruises after being struck by the auto of Albert Douglas, Mansfield R. D. 1, on North Diamond street. Douglas told Patrolman Roeliff Hout the housewife stepped in front of his slow moving car. The victim said the driver cut a corner too short in making a left turn.

Police today were seeking the driver of a hit-skip vehicle which badly damaged the parked car of Andrew Kittleberger, 150 Benedict avenue. Marks on the damaged auto indicated, police say, that the hit-and-run vehicle was a high-slung truck.

Harry R. Mustin, 136 Glenwood boulevard, told police that his parked car was damaged when sideswiped by a city bus driven by C. W. Schaffer, Mansfield R. D. 3. The mishap occurred at Mulberry and Fourth streets.

AGENT WOUNDED IN RAID RIOT

32 Patrons of Club Arrested After Fight; One Accused Of Shooting to Kill.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—A riot staged by angry patrons detained in the suburban Brooklyn town hall after a raid on an unlicensed liquor spot resulted in the shooting early yesterday morning of Vernon C. Tobias, 48, of Fremont, O., a state liquor inspector.

Tobias was shot through the groin by his own service revolver. Frank Noble, 62, of Cleveland, a patron of the Rod and Gun club, is held in jail on a warrant sworn out by Floyd A. Gable, state agent who led the raid. The warrant charges Noble with shooting to kill.

State men, gathered from all over Ohio, raided the club, arrested 32 patrons, and transported them to the Brooklyn village town hall.

Mayor Orwell Kresge announced all were charged with loitering. The mayor's announcement was met with ugly remarks, and one of a crowd milling near the town hall door yelled: "Let's get out of here!"

State men formed a solid line at the door as an angry group attempted to press past them. A revolver shot stopped the rush toward the exit and Tobias fell, moaning.

Joseph Augustine, 35, operator of the club, is charged with operating liquor spot without a license and with illegal possession of intoxicating liquor which state men said they found at the club bar and in its office safe.

Mayor Kresge said he would furnished gasoline ration boards with the names of the 32 customers caught in the raid.

DIES AT AGE 73

Miss Lois Neal Taken by Death At Shelby.

SHELBY—Miss Lois W. Neal, 73, died today at Shelby Memorial hospital after a brief illness. She had been a resident of Shelby since 1915.

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Jennie Beard of St. Marysville, Cal., and a brother, Edgar Neal of Sabina, O.

The body was removed to the Sutter funeral home, pending funeral arrangements.

Bellville residents yesterday afternoon enjoyed the bright sunshine but are in a quandary as to the identity of an army bombing plane crew which hovered over the town for about 20 minutes. They are of the belief that the pilot or some member of his command was paying an unannounced "visit" home. The huge fighting bird circled low over the area repeatedly but no messages were dropped to the scores of onlookers who stood with craned necks expecting something to happen. Finally the craft took off in the direction of Columbus or Dayton.

Only four of 59 incident reports turned in during last week's four sectional dim outs will merit investigation, according to Police Chief Jesse Schwab, defense commander. "One merchant in an outlying sector has indicated unwillingness to cooperate," Schwab said today. "Should this person or any other show the same hesitancy in Thursday night's city-wide dim-out, arrest and prosecution will be the only recourse. Stiff fines and prison penalties are provided. Generally, however, Mansfield is awake to the seriousness of air raid possibilities and nearly all residents are cooperating splendidly."

Teamsters relate that old horses sometimes get cast in their stalls, unable to rise. Patrolmen John Grohol and Arthur Conrady early Sunday found a Mansfield man cast on a Hedges street sidewalk, powerless to manipulate an errant wooden leg which had failed him. According to their report the crippled man had lost his way and his calls for aid were alarming to residents still bent on Sunday morning slumber. Helped to his feet and "able to navigate" the man was directed to his South Franklin avenue abode.

DAVIS TARGET FOR NEW BLAST

Taft Scores 'Propaganda' Broadcast By Director, Calls It Abuse.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The Office of War Information is under Republican fire today on charges that Director Elmer Davis is abusing his powers in furtherance of administration policies in general and a fourth term in particular.

Sen. Robert A. Taft, R., O., complained that Davis had "commandeered" all the radio stations in the country for the first of a series of weekly broadcasts last Friday.

"It is both an abuse of power and an insult to the intelligence of the American people and to the abilities of our free press and radio workers," Taft said.

"Americans do not take kindly to propaganda by their government. They have learned to despise the methods of Goebbels in telling the German people when to listen and what to think."

Davis promptly challenged Taft to point out "just what was propagandistic" about last Friday's broadcast. He also denied that the four networks were commandeered, saying that his broadcast was "offered to anyone who wanted it — there was no compulsion." Furthermore, he said, only two networks, not four, carried it.

Rep. John Taber, R., N. Y., is spokesman for the enemies of OWI in the house. Taber is suspicious of fourth term propaganda. So far this month he has ridiculed a cartoon story of the life of Mr. Roosevelt issued by OWI and some of the moving picture and radio programs which are being produced under Davis' supervision.

Destroy Letters In New Outbreak Of 'Chain' Scheme

A new outbreak of the chain letter craze flooding mail bags at the Mansfield postoffice brought on a warning today from Postmaster H. E. Homberger.

When detected, such letters will be destroyed resulting in a waste of postage on the part of the sender, Homberger said.

He added that chain letters of any sort whether involving fraud or not are in violation of the postal laws and regulations. A number of such letters and cards which arrived at the postoffice last week have already been drawn from the mail and destroyed.

Newest in this fad are letters passing on the "luck of London" which is reputed to bring great fortune to those who pass it on. Another is a chain letter using war stamps in place of the customary bits of money.

Latest outbreak is a revival of nationwide popularity of the chain letter five years ago. At that time the Mansfield postoffice along with those all over the country were tied up with the volume of mail caused by the letters calling for cash payments from 10 cents to a dollar or more.

G. O. P. IN HOUSE LINES UP FOR RUML TAX PLAN

Minority Rallies Forces for Attempt to Pass Pay-Go Income System.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The 209 Republican members of the house meet in party conference today to line up their forces behind the Ruml pay-as-you-go tax plan. .

Meantime, with 15 Democratic members and one Republican, Rep. Gearhart of California, supporting it, the first draft of a bill to retain the present system of collecting taxes on income after it is earned was laid before the house ways and means committee.

House Republican Leader Joseph Martin, jr., asserted it likely that the overwhelming majority of the G. O. P. members will oppose the administration's measure and added that there is a "good chance" that enough Democrats will break ranks to upset it.

Rep. Carlson (R.), Kan., a member of the ways and means committee, has introduced a bill providing for the abatement of a year's taxes and embodying the other essential features of the plan advocated by Beardsley Ruml, chairman of the New York Federal Reserve board.

It is this legislation that the G. O. P. hopes to substitute for the administration's bill on the house floor and it will be the subject of a minority report by nine Republicans on the ways and means committee who are demanding pay-as-you-go.

Rep. Knutson, a ranking Republican on the committee who is drafting the report, replied today to criticism of the Ruml plan by President Roosevelt.

"Mr. Roosevelt," said Knutson, "argued that those in the large income groups would receive an unfair advantage over those in the lower brackets if a year of taxes were forigven.

"If that statement be true, then it means that the converse is true—that the rates which have been imposed on big incomes by this administration are unfair. After all, the amount forgiven is governed solely by the rates applied against each bracket. If the forgiveness based on that ratio is unfair, then the rates are unfair."

RELAXES ORDER

U. S. Says 8-Ounce Packages Can Be Sent Overseas.

Relaxation of the order that no packages of any sort may be sent to men in the army serving overseas was announced today by Postmaster Herman E. Homberger upon an official report from Washington.

Parcels not exceeding eight ounces with postage paid at first class, or letter rates may now be sent to the men overseas. House organs, organization bulletins and similar material may also be sent according to the new regulations.

A previous order forbid sending of packages to army men abroad unless they requested them. These requests had to be authorized by the commanding officer before the soldier could receive a parcel. The exceptions to this order of Jan. 7 respecting parcels for military agencies included those sent to army post exchanges, canteens, Red Cross, Ui S. O. and library officers and religious material addressed to chaplains in their official capacity.

N HOLLYWOOD-- By Robbin Coons

OLLYWOOD—All but incurable jitterbugs will doubtless be able to bear up, but the touring he bands' one-night stands seem to be on ice the duration. On ice, or in Hollywood, and more quently the latter.

ommy Dorsey and gang, before coming here to make "Girl Crazy," played to 68,000 fans in 23 one-nighters during which tour his musicians had one evening off. They intended to spend it in Salt Lake City, but passed most of it in Ogden, waiting five hours for a train. Once they traveled 659 miles in a 1931 truck, and once the 31 band boys and their instruments were packed into a 14-passenger bus for a long hop So Dorsey has ruled out one-night stands.

During the evening the army took over the bus they were using, together with other means of transportation. James and his boys had a three-day wait in Syracuse, missing three other engagements, and they haven't tried any tours since that experience.

Kay Kyser ("Right About Face") generally is able to charter a bus to take his gang to service centers to put on shows, and he isn't trying any other tours.

Food as well as transportation complicates the business. Kay and his boys, returning from the east some time ago went without food for 27 hours. Soldiers and sailors are fed first on trains, and the other passengers take pot luck—if any. On this trip, after the 27-hour fast, they learned that the train would stop for five minutes at a small desert town in Arizona, and two of the boys were nominated to run across to a little grocery by the tracks and buy bread and sausage. Just as the train pulled in, a freight train barred the way. One boy crawled under, made the dash, and crawled back just before the freight pulled out. He sold sandwiches to the others for $2 apiece.

Freddie Slack's band (in "The Sky's the Limit") tried a series of one-nighters in the San Joaquin valley, had the usual trouble with buses and trains and an additional woe with sleeping accommodations. In Oakland, Calif., where the tour started, there were no rooms to be had. "We stayed with relatives, slept on park benches, in bus stations and telephone booths," he says.

Westbrook Pegler's column will be resumed tomorrow.

Japanese Drive In China 'Collapses'

CHUNGKING—(U.P.)—The Japanese drive between the Yangtze river and Tung Ling lake has "completely collapsed" after one week of heavy fighting, a Chinese war communique announced today.

Chinese forces launched a counter-attack Saturday night and by Sunday the enemy was on the run toward the Yangtze, from which eight Japanese columns had started the campaign last Monday, it was said.

Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek's army had halted, at least temporarily, the enemy's threat to the rich rice-producing lands along the river and the shore of the lake. This area controls important communications and supply lines in the vicinity of Changteh and Changsha

Hint at Japanese Move on Siberia

CHUNGKING —(U.P.)— The Chinese press hinted today that the visit of Premier Hideki Tojo of Japan to occupied China foreshadowed a Japanese attempt to invade Siberia.

The China Times, commenting on Tojo's conference with Wang Ching-Wei, Chinese puppet ruler, said:

"Only two possibilities are left for Japan—defeat the American navy or attack Siberia. Since Japan has no use for Wang Ching-Wei in a sea battle, Tojo's visit undoubtedly was intended to make Ching Wei collect able bodied Chinese for Japan's attack on Siberia."

STORY LISTS WRONG NAME

A story in Saturday's issue of the News-Journal incorrectly stated that C C Fish, an executive of the Shelby Metal Products company had been sentenced to 10 days in the county jail for contempt of court

Defendant in the case was John Fish, secretary and sales manager of the Shelby firm, and not C. C Fish

The sentence, imposed after the defendant allegedly disregarded a court order restraining him from interfering with the activities of his wife Iva Marie Fish, was later suspended by Common Pleas Judge G E Kalbfleisch.

William Thull, manager of the wholesale-retail store on North Main street, said "we will have a small quantity each day this week for the tavern keepers and a small amount for the retail buyer."

Based on the daily quota mentioned by Poling the week's shipment to Mansfield is calculated at little more than 150 cases.

Ohioans continued today without any explanation of the drought from Director Fisher who recently blamed the distillers who previously had said they were equipped to meet a normal five-year demand despite the government freezing of alcohol for war purposes only.

Store managers report that sometimes there is a delay in deliveries from state warehouses under Office of Defense Transportation regulations which require that trucks must be assured of a return cargo before making a delivery to any point out of Columbus. However, this is no way accounts for the apparent shortage of stocks, they admit.

In a recent newsppaer survey of 29 states from coast to coast it developed that seaboard points remote from distillery sections have ample whisky stocks, notably Washington, D C, and New York. Michigan and Pennsylvania have experienced some difficulty overcome by rationing programs while West Virginia, like Ohio, has been almost dry at times Both states border on Kentucky, internationally recognized center of rye and bourbon whisky production.

ture was effected by hard fighting several days and culminating in an encircling operation from north and east, south and west.

The Russians claimed to be riding roughshod over German fortified systems on the central front, but they still were at least 80 miles east of Smolensk, the key position in Hitler's positions west of Moscow, as they advanced along the railroad from captured Vyazma. The mid-day communique announced the capture of Semilevo, 14 miles west of Vyazma

To the northwest of Vyazma, however, they apparently were within about 65 or 75 miles of Smolensk.

To the southwest of Vyazma they apparently were much closer, as they are believed to have held for many months the position of Dorogobuzh, less than 50 miles southeast of Smolensk

Dorogobuzh is on the Dnieper, which here was a highly important part of the defense system of Smolensk, and the breaching of the river line to the northeast might have far reaching results in the developing Russian offensive

In Tunisia, the British First army was reported advancing over hundreds of German dead found in the mountains of the SedJenane area on the sea flank of the Allied line

The British advance was of a limited nature Most of the German dead apparently were the result of previous actions

Today's Allied communique reported no change in the general situation, with patrol activity continuing all along the front and the weather restricting air operations to bombing of the Mareth line and an encounter with an enemy torpedo plane formation in which one of the torpedo bombers was shot down and "most of the others" damaged.

A Cairo communique said American airmen attacked Naples Saturday night.

The Allies apparently were far from the point of launching a general offensive however and dispatches from Allied headquarters in North Africa suggested the Germans might have at least one more offensive up their sleeve

The dispatches said that crack new German units had appeared in the northern sector, posibly for an attack on the key position of Medjez-el-Bab and that fresh reserves of German planes had reached the theater

Cairo dispatches disclosed a powerful factor in the success of the British Eighth army in its 1,500-mile march from Egypt was a new type Hurricane "tank-buster" fighter plane equipped with cannon which were said to have scored direct hits on at least 74 of Marshal Erwin Rommel's tanks in the last few months.

The western aerial war was on a minor scale, but RAF fighters swept over the continent last night and shot up four trains, including one in Germany. These followed Sunday sweeps over enemy airfields at Abbeville and Maupertus in France A few bombs were dropped in northeast England

Guerrilla War Still Raging

ZURICH — (INS) — Intermittent fighting continued today in the Haute Savoie region of France along the Swiss border, some 25 miles from Geneva.

French partisans commanded by General Cartier, a former French army officer, were entrenched in mountain strongpoints along the frontier, defying Italian troops and Vichy guardsmen to come and get them.

The Axis forces, at last reports, had given the patriots until midnight tonight to surrender The partisans had replied that they would fight to the end

The patriots, estimated to number from 5,000 to 6,000 men, are openly receiving supplies and arms by plane, dispatches to Swiss newspapers said. Allied aircraft are dropping these supplies in broad daylight, it was declared.

Believe Spellman's On Vital Mission

ALGIERS —(U.P.)— Belief grew today that Archbishop Francis J. Spellman, who broadcast an assurance of victory to Allied troops in North Africa yesterday, was on an important diplomatic mission for the American government.

The most likely subject of the mission, it was believed here, would concern possibility of a separate Allied peace with Italy.

The prelate's tour of the political and war fronts of Europe and Africa have taken him to Portugal, Spain and the Vatican. Among various personages with whom he conferred were Portuguese Premier Dr. Antonio De Oliveira Salazar, Generalissimo Francisco Franco of Spain and Pope Pius XII.

This week he will confer with various Allied leaders in North Africa, including Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and the American minister, Robert Murphy, before returning to the United States where, it was understood, he will report to President Roosevelt.

The archbishop has been extremely reticent about his trip

had taken up a high position in the African setup, De Gaulle said·

"In any case, I repeat today as we have often affirmed since Dec. 25 last that we are ready to study on the spot between Frenchmen the conditions and ways and means of an effective union of the empire, so imperiously demanded by the interests of France at war"

Giraud heartened the followers of Gen De Gaulle by recognizing the laws of the third republic as the only valid French laws, thereby repudiating the armistice of 1940 and all the laws and decrees of the Vichy regime This met, at least in part, the De Gaulle thesis that the third republic is the only legally constituted and valid government of France.

The Fighting French were also pleased with Giraud's announcement that he was abolishing all racial discrimination in North Africa and was moving to democratize the colonial government there.

They complained only that some "men of Vichy" remained still in prominent positions in the African colonial government and at least two—Marcel Peyrouton, governor-general of Algeria and Pierre Boisson, governor-general of West Africa—were on the platform from which he addressed a patriotic meeting in Algiers yesterday. They said also that Giraud had not been forthright enough—that some of his statements were "vague"

CIVIL ECONOMY FACING DEEPER CUTS, WARNING

War Demands on Manpower To Increase, Washington Officials Reveal.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Deeper cuts in civilian economy probably will be necessary to meet manpower and other needs of an armed force of 10,800,000 men, informed officials said today.

Manpower was described as the No. 1 problem ahead.

Officials have estimated that 3,200,000 additional workers must be shifted from non-essential industries to war plants. There are conflicting opinions whether the civilian economy can stand the impact of such a transfer.

Army officials declare that the transition can be carried without much difficulty if the labor problem is properly handled. Congressional groups challenge that stand and are seeking to whittle down the goal of the armed services.

A new threat, officials said, lies in legislation before congress providing blanket draft deferment for farmers and agricultural workers The senate is expected to take a final vote on such a bill, sponsored by Sen. John H. Bankhead, (D. Ala) this week, although administration leaders are waging a last minute attempt to defeat it

Sen Millard E Tydings, (D. Mo.) said in a radio address yesterday that the Bankhead bill would defer all farmers

"Under the provisions of the Bankhead bill," Tydings said, "all farmers, regardless of the amount of food they produce, or regardless of the fact that a replacement may be available, are blanketed out of the draft as a class."

The extent of the forthcoming dislocation of civilian economy, if the 10,800,000-man armed force goal stands, will depend partly on the number of women that can be trained for war jobs and for replacement of men in hotels, restaurants, laundries and other service jobs.

The Office of Civilian Supply is surveying the service trades to determine their essential needs from the standpoint of manpower and material requirements The survey includes hotels plumbing and heating establishments, barber beauty shops, tire repair and retreading shops, medical and surgical supply houses, machinery and equipment repair.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, MARCH 15, 1943.

Final reminder—this is the last day for filing income tax reports.

Growing fear is being expressed that the inflation horse will be stolen before the stabilization door is locked.

Pity the new arrival in the ranks of income tax eligibles who confuses New Deal preachments with revenue department practices.

Midnight Deadline for Income Reports

THIS FINAL day for filing income tax reports brings the usual rush of late-comers to get under the wire before midnight.

The vast spread of income taxes this year has brought many additional eligibles into the fold, some of whom do not appear to realize that payment of income taxes is a serious obligation, while others have been misled into believing that congress was likely to do something that would relieve them of making a report and partial payment by March 15.

It has been estimated that the current taxes will be applicable to 40,000,000 or 45,000,000 people instead of the 17,500,000 who filed returns last year. But reports indicate that total filings for the nation will be many millions fewer than they should be.

Much of the resulting delinquency may be due to confusion or ignorance on the part of persons without previous experience of this kind. But some of it seems to be deliberate indifference or refusal. The internal revenue collector in one large industrial area reported a "rebellious undercurrent among wage earners," some of whom refused point-blank to make out returns, saying defiantly, "Let the government come and get me."

Such an attitude is dangerous not only to the national welfare at a time when the government needs all the money it can possibly raise, to carry the cost of a great war and preserve national solvency. It is also personally dangerous to the tax-dodgers themselves. For those wilfully failing to report and pay their share are liable to a fine as high as $10,000 and imprisonment from one to ten years.

Red Cross Campaign Extended

EXTENSION of the Red Cross fund-raising campaign into the third week, in order to reach Richland county's goal of $59,000, involves additional work for hundreds of volunteer canvassers who must carry on until this community's fair share of the national total of $125,000,000 has been pledged.

But this is a mission of mercy in which none of the workers ever begrudges the time and effort devoted to it, and the third week is being entered with the same enthusiasm and determination as the first.

Little would be gained by further attempt to emphasize the importance of the war activities of the Red Cross, or by telling again how this great humanitarian agency functions on every battlefront in saving lives, relieving suffering and providing comforts and conveniences for men in the fighting forces.

It is not a matter of WHETHER everybody should give to the Red Cross—it is merely a matter of HOW MUCH each CAN give, even if personal sacrifice must be made to meet this obligation.

The need is vital. Giving to the Red Cross stands high among civilian duties. Double last year's subscription is none too much. This week's response should assure reaching and passing Richland county's quota.

Another 'Fourth Term' Boom

MENTION that Ohio's Governor John W. Bricker might be induced to accept a fourth term in that office seems more designed to further the governor's presidential aspirations than to put the political wheels in motion in this state in an effort to land a fourth term for him.

The mere suggestion of a fourth term in the office of either president or governor is tantamount to expressing belief that the incumbent is "indispensable"—that none other can be found who could serve as well in the office.

Now that Governor Bricker's hat is more or less "in the ring" for a fourth term as governor and also for the Republican nomination for the presidency next year, it is not unlikely that his record in the governor's office thus far will be more closely scrutinized than it has heretofore been.

There will be serious questioning, for instance, of the justification for such extravagances in the operation of state government as have made his the most costly administrations in the history of the state—at a time when the interests of already heavily burdened taxpayers demand strict economy in the handling of public business in states, counties and municipalities.

His call for a much higher budget this year, with a legislature not inclined to question his estimates, holds little hope of any change of heart on the part of Governor Bricker in the matter of following the federal course of excessive expenditures for non-military purposes. If it is upon the basis of his record as the most profligate spender ever to hold that office that Governor Bricker deems himself entitled to a fourth term—in the event his presidential boom doesn't pan out his claim to preferment is one that will probably appeal to all money-spending politicians who may continue to profit by his retention in the governor's chair.

Another 'Thirty Years War'

ONE of the great conflicts of history was the Thirty Years' war. Lasting from 1617 to 1648, it involved, at different times, Germany, Austria, Denmark, Sweden, France and Spain. It ended in general exhaustion and complete devastation of the chief battleground, Germany.

Though it is called the Thirty Years' war, fighting did not go on continually for all that time. Every winter the armies abandoned the field to go into barracks until spring.

Now the world is engaged in a second Thirty Years' war. Beginning in 1914, it has, like the earlier conflict, had its periods of technical cessation from battle, while the actual struggle continued in the economic and diplomatic fields. There was no fighting from 1934, when Hitler occupied the Rhineland, till September 1939, but for all practical purposes Europe was at war.

The first Thirty Years' war is still remembered with horror for the misery it caused. The present Thirty Years' war is proving even more destructive.

THE COLT IS HARD TO HANDLE

More and More Allied Air Power Is Needed to Speed Axis Defeat

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

THE WAR is entering a critical phase in which air-power bids fair to play a part far exceeding in importance anything that has gone before.

Looking back at such frightful aerial sieges as that of Britain it's hard to believe the skies could unloose greater death and destruction. Yet we are on the verge of vast developments.

The air navies are rushing toward bombing operations which will be unprecedented in violence and size. At least the Allied forces are headed that way. The Luftwaffe is keeping remarkably quiet, but it will be surprising if Hitler isn't able to fling a great fleet into the air when he feels his crisis at hand.

The reason for this increase in air importance lies in the fact, of course, that American and British industries finally have produced sufficient aerial striking power so the Luftwaffe at last has a giant competitive. And that power is pyramiding.

The most conclusive evidence of the turn of events lies in the terrific bombing offensive being conducted against Western Europe and Germany by the Anglo-American forces based in Britain.

As explained by British Air Secretary Sinclair in the house of commons, the Royal Air Force alone wrecked 2,000 German war factories, cut Nazi steel production by 1,250,000 tons annually, and driven a million or more Germans from shattered homes. This doesn't include the devastation wrought by the American air force.

* * *

WE MAY expect this bombing to increase in intensity, for it is the forerunner of the eagerly awaited invasion of France by the Allies. Hitler's chief industries, bases and communications must be crippled.

It would be massacre to try to put an army ashore from the English Channel without this preparation and without providing an absolute umbrella of warplane protection for the landing.

Reichmarshal Goering reportedly has been in Rome conferring with Italian officials. It wouldn't be surprising if this were true, and the mission which would take the Nazi air chief to the Eternal City might be the threat of an Allied invasion of Italy as soon as the North African show is over. Here again the Anglo-American airfleet would break trail and must be met by the Luftwaffes.

Speaking of North Africa, Allied air superiority in Tunisia is playing a major part in operations which are swinging our way. And it was Allied air supremacy in Libya which was a vital factor in General Montgomery's historic victory over Rommel.

As soon as we have manhandled Der Fuehrer sufficiently we shall go out all-out against Japan. Here again it will be the air which will lead the way for an invasion that will clear Burma of the Japs and re-open the supply route to China.

Then will come the blasting of Tokyo and other Japanese cities until the Mikado will have to quit to save his little island from being blown out of the sea.

We won't overlook that our air strength in the Southwest Pacific permitted of the unprecedented victory over the Japs in the Bismarck Sea. That warplane fleet is a major factor in maintaining superiority over the Japs in that strategic area.

So the call of the air is increasingly great in all the theaters of war. We are piling up vast strength, but we are far from the necessary peak. We need more and more if we are to shorten the conflict.

* * *

DESTRUCTION by air is far cheaper in Allied lives and equipment than destruction by our armies. A squadron of bombers can wipe out in a few hours what it might take an army months to destroy.

Sir Commodore H. N. Thornton British air attache in Washington, says 1,000 plane raids in Western Europe and Germany will be increased "when we get the planes." That's the story.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, March 15, 1923.

Two cents a gallon gasoline tax was being discussed for Ohio, with revenues to go to highway construction and upkeep.

Rev. R. C. Goebel arrived from Bowling Green to become pastor of St. Peter's Catholic church.

H. E. Johnston was elected president of the Mansfield Horseshoe league.

U. C. club associates gave birthday surprise party for Mrs. Thomas Casey at home of Mrs Elsie Kneeland, South Diamond street.

Meeting of Richland County Bankers' association was held at Evergreens.

Dr T. W. Oberlin, of Hammond Ind., was called here by the illness of his mother, Mrs. W. K. Oberlin, West Fourth street.

B. J. Smith bought the Fred Brunn meat market at 224 North Main street.

TODAY IN HISTORY

General John J. Pershing, leader of the American Expeditionary Force in the first World war, led his forces into Mexico on March 15, 1916, against Pancho Villa.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"But, Mom . . . you said not to throw the orange peel on the floor!"

Dave Boone Says:

WELL, we go into the red coupons in that technicolor ration book March 29, getting two pounds of meat, cheese or canned fish a week. And now the butcher is going to have his troubles. He's got to make change in coupons as well as in money.

* * *

I look for a new high in arguments between the butchers and the customers.

Two pounds of meat or substitutes a week will be the ration figure and if the second helping hasn't disappeared from American life it is going to now. Cheese is declared to be a meat substitute, but it won't be generally accepted as such unless a way is found to get gravy from it.

That's a hot one about thousands of war-plant workers out west refusing to file income tax returns. You'd be surprised how many people are rebelling now after years of warm approval of income taxes as long as they hit somebody else.

* * *

After this war's over there will be such a general howl over taxes from everybody, high, low and in the middle, that the spend, spend and spend boys will come close to going into an eclipse.

Speaking the Same Language.

The decision of Cleveland public schools to teach pupils fundamental everyday-life vocabularies in French, German and Spanish merits praise, but how about Russian and Chinese?

Too long have the English-speaking peoples insisted that Asiatics master our tongue, rather than our learning theirs. French and German have held their place in high school curricula. Spanish moved in when spreading commercial contacts in Latin America brought the language greater attention.

America's future is global, and America's education must keep pace. If we are to deal diplomatically and commercially with our Allies in Russia and China we must speak the same language in speech as well as in principle.—Akron Beacon Journal.

"Until Victory."

Editor News-Journal:

The expression "for the duration" has come to occupy a prominent place in our lives. We give up materials needed for war, we undertake extra duties in civilian defense, we revise our entire thinking—"for the duration."

But right here I have a suggestion to make; how about dropping this "for the duration" and using in its place "until victory."

"I'm starting such a campaign among my friends. It has a positive ring to it that always gives me a lift. And it symbolizes a change in morale. The more people stop hanging on grimly "for the duration" and start marching ahead, chin up, and fighting mad, "until victory"—the closer victory comes.

Effectiveness of U. S. Bombers Demonstrated In Raids on Europe

WASHINGTON—Despite the criticism you may hear of American planes, U. S. airmen who have studied the current bombings of Europe say privately that one American bomber is worth five of the British.

American planes are heavily armed and heavily armored. Able to protect themselves, they operate in the daylight, with precision bombing, whereas the British planes, flying at night, must lay down a pattern of bombs over a whole area, hoping that the principal target will be hit.

British planes can carry a heavier load of bombs, but the fewer bombs carried by the American planes are more effective because they go straight to the target.

Further, American planes have suffered fewer losses proportionately than the British, both operational and combat losses.

In fact the American contribution is so important that the all-out bombing of Germany must await the availability of more U. S. planes.

Most people think there is a heavy concentration of American planes in England now, and that the current round-the-clock bombings are the big show. Neither is correct.

There was a concentration of U. S. planes in England last summer and fall, made with intended publicity. This had the effect of sending the Nazis scurrying all over western Europe to mend their defenses. Then U. S. air strength was pulled out of England for the mission it had been intended for—the invasion of North Africa.

U. S. air strength in England is now being built up again, and when the time comes, the two air forces combined will stage the show intended to knock Germany out of the war.

Ladies of the Army.

WHEN ladies were first brought into the army, an aide jokingly warned Secretary of War Stimson that if he wern't careful the WAACs eventually would want to run the war department.

That prediction has not yet come to pass, but the WAACs today are getting rebellious at old line army officers and the cuspidor atmosphere of recruiting stations.

Trouble is that when recruiting was stopped in the army, the army's regular recruiting officers were transferred to the WAACs. And under their old-fashioned methods, the WAACs now must boost their present strength of 42,000 to their authorized strength of 150,000; later to 375,000, the new strength to be authorized by Congress. This will be three times the size of the pre-war regular army.

Meanwhile, under male domination, recruiting goes down not up. In Springfield, Mass., two WAAC officers in charge of recruiting chafe under a colonel who lays down the rule that they may not appear singly, but only together, on the streets of the city. This cuts their effectiveness in half.

In cities such as Hartford and St. Louis, WAAC officers would like to be free to do a selling job, but they are hindered by old-line officers who still labor under the impression that this is a man's army. WAACs complain that they have to sit under the nose of their male superior, who even listens in on their telephone conversations.

Smoke and Cuspidors.

WAACs say they don't fear going into battle, but that even the bravest girls are frightened off by the cigar-smoke-and-cuspidor atmosphere of the typical army recruiting station in the basement of the post office building.

In Washington, D. C., WAAC officers asked for clerical recruiting assistance and got four men who had just joined the army and had no training whatever. So the women took the men in hand and taught them military customs, including how to salute.

Weak spots in WAAC recruiting are New England, New York, St. Louis, Omaha, and the South generally. Chivalrous Southern fathers hesitate to let their daughters go off to war.

Note: Many WAAC officers are women who have been successful in business, and have earned more than the regular army colonels and majors they serve under.

Willkie's Hat In Ring.

FOR a long time friends of Wendell Willkie have been urging him to begin organizing now if he wanted the Republican nomination in 1944. But he has stalled them off, either not decided whether he wanted to run again, or else figuring that he could repeat what he did at Philadelphia in 1940—take the convention by storm.

Now, however, the sub-rosa activity of Willkie's friends indicates that the die is cast.

They have been quietly sounding out Republican leaders in various states on the idea of pledged delegations for Willkie at the 1944 GOP convention. Considerable progress has been made in Indiana, where Ralph Gates, Republican state chairman, who plans to run for governor next year, is lending an attentive ear to proposals for a lineup with Willkie.

A resolution inviting him to address the GOP-controlled Indiana legislature at first was violently opposed by leaders of the legislature. The old-line chiefs, typical of GOP leaders in the party generally, were against him. However, popular pressure forced them to back down and consent to adoption of the resolution.

In a followup speech to the Republican women's clubs that night, Willkie took the place by storm. Actually Willkie made two speeches to the GOP ladies. In the first, which was broadcast, he extolled the virtues of Abraham Lincoln and pleaded for national unity behind the war effort.

The second speech was delivered after he went off the air and was political with a capital "P." Amid roars of approval from his listeners, Willkie scathingly denounced the Roosevelt administration, declared the only hope for democracy rested with the Republican party.

Farmer's Diary

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

"HOW LONG," HE ASKS

HE HAD a heavy load of posts on his low-built wagon. The field was soft in spots and the big gray team lunged against their collars, to keep from miring. Lather showed where the harness touched. The driver, a lean man of about sixty, stopped the team on the gravel road and let them breathe while he mopped his furrowed brow with a crumpled red bandana. It seemed he had worked as hard as his team to move that load.

"That's heavy work, to start with," I suggested, stopping.

"Yes—but it has to be done before plowing starts."

"How many acres have you?" I wondered, inwardly noting the man's intelligent, purposeful face—lined with character.

"A hundred sixty acres—and I own just three good horses. Have my land three-fourths paid for, and a line of used hose drawn tools, not too good. Aimed to buy a tractor and tools to go with it, but I just finished paying for what I have and thought I was too old to venture farther."

"And now—"

"Now prices of farm products are up and I can't buy a tractor, even though my grandchild who's 16, could run it to perfection! We could do all the work ourselves by working early and late. I went to the war ration board and they laughed at me. One said, 'You're the 830th man who has applied.' I couldn't buy a grain drill that I needed—nor even a clover seeder.

"On my way home, I got to thinking. Plenty o' folks are finding fault—any fool can do that—but what'll get us out of this mess? What's the reason a dozen farmers as old as I am go past my house every day to work in war plants in the city? Why—big wages.

"Who's payin' 'em? Why, the government!

"For what? For munitions of war that have to share the same trucks and boats and trains that carry food to the fighting men. One's no good without the other!

"Then why couldn't the government guarantee the farmers wages, too? Wouldn't that be patriotism off o' the same piece? Why—if these farmers could stay on their farms and earn even a little less than they get away from home, don't you think they'd stay? I know they would! I've talked to 'em about it!

"I've a grandson overseas. I know we must win this war or we'll lose everything. If the boys at the front need anything I've got, they can sure have it. If it's blood, they can have that. If it's wheat and corn, or milk or meat I'll keep workin' 16 hours a day, and not waste time. We mustn't let them down—our fighting men!" His tired voice quivered.

"But 'without vision a people perish' as truly today as they did a thousand years ago. How long will it be before experienced farmers are recognized for their real value and treated as equals of men in other industries? Fair play and equal treatment would make a big difference. Even willing workers must have wages and tools!"

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

Speak not evil one of another, brethren.—Jas. 4:11.

ERNIE PYLE

Roving Reporter

Spirit of Real Newspaper Office Shown By "Stars & Stripes" Staff.

ALGIERS, ALGERIA—The staff of the army newspaper Stars & Stripes, now being published in Africa as well and England, is probably the most compact little family among all our troops abroad. By sticking together and using their noodles, they've just about got the miseries of African life whipped.

There are 18 of them. Their big boss is Lieut. Col. Egbert White, a gray-haired loveable man who speaks quietly and makes sure that the boys under him are well cared for. Col. White, incidentally, spent a week at the front recently, wandered around until he got behind the German lines, and got himself shot at.

The actual working editor of Stars & Stripes in Africa is Lieut. Bob Neville, who was promoted recently from sergeant. Like all others who have been commissioned in the field, he's had a terrible time getting himself an officer's uniform.

Col. White gave him a blouse, which fits perfectly. A correspondent gave him a cap. He bought a pair of pants of another officer. He picked up his bars here, there and everywhere. He cut the stripes off his overcoat and pretends it's from Burberry's. But as somebody has already said, the rules at the front are pretty elastic, and how you look doesn't matter much.

THE Stars & Stripes has its editorial offices in the Red Cross building, a beautiful brand new structure of six stories in downtown Algiers. It's just as modern as New York, except the acoustics engineer was insane, and if you drop a pin on the first floor it sounds like New Year's Eve in a boiler shop on the fifth floor.

The staff of the Star & Stripes works and lives in this building. On the top floor they have a huge front room, which serves both as dormitory and clubroom. At first they were sleeping on the hard tile floor. But later the Red Cross dug up French iron cots for them, so now they're almost as comfortable as at home.

They have big steel cupboards to use as shelves, and a large table where they write letters and play cards. There's always a huge basket of tangerines sitting on the table. The windows are blacked out so they can have lights at night. They've bought an oil stove for the center of the room, so they have the unspeakable winter climate whipped and tied.

A dozen of the staff write and edit the paper; half a dozen do the mechanical work. They have made an arrangement with a local newspaper for using its composing room. But the American soldiers do all their own mechanical work.

There are four linotype operators on the staff. The boss man is Pvt. Irving Levinson, of Stamford, Conn. He is a good-natured genius at getting work done in a foreign country.

He has to get out a paper in a French composing room in which not a soul speaks English, and Irv speaks not a work of French. But his native good humor works so well that within two weeks all the French printers were addressing him by the familiar "tu," they were having him out to their homes for dinner, and the paper was coming out regularly.

TWO of the other linotype operators are Pfc. William Gigente, of Brooklyn, and Corp. Edward Rossman of Pleasantville, N. J. The fourth is Pvt. Jack Wentzel of Philadelphia, and his is the funniest case of all. He hasn't run a linotype since he came on Stars & Stripes. He hasn't, because he's been too busy cooking.

Pvt. Wentzel never cooked a meal in his life, outside of helping his mother a little when he was a kid. But the Stars and Stripes decided to set up its own mess right in its own building, and by drawing straws or something, Pvt. Wentzel became the cook.

Before many meals passed the staff discovered they had a culinary wizard in their midst. Wentzel sort of liked it himself. So by acclamation they made him permanent cook.

Now the three other linotype operators work overtime, doing his composing-room work for him, so he can remain as cook. As they say, it isn't quite in line with union rules, but right now they don't happen to be under union jurisdiction.

At any rate, the staff contributes to the mess fund out of their own pockets, for various local delicacies in addition to the regular army rations. So they wind up with what is unquestionably the best army mess in the Algiers area. The food is so good that Lieut. Neville and Capt. Harry Harchar, the circulation manager, who are supposed to eat at some officers' mess, eat most of their meals with the men instead.

The whole shebang is about the nearest thing in spirit to a genuine newspaper office back home that I can conceive of.
